

Rebels Repel Oman Troops

KERSHA VILLAGE, Oman (Reuters)—British-led loyalist troops, advancing against rebel tribesmen in Oman, have withdrawn after meeting unexpectedly strong opposition at Firq, six miles from the rebel stronghold of Nizwa.

The opposition at Firq was estimated at 200 trained men led by Talib bin Ali, brother of the rebellious Imam of Oman.

Earlier today, a British army spokesman at Manama, Bahrain, said the British-backed forces had met resistance at Firq, but were going forward today to discover the strength and location of the opposition.

DASH ACROSS DESERT

The 700-strong mechanized column slashed across the desert to the vicinity of that stronghold Thursday afternoon.

Today it rested around fresh water wells outside this village, about 11 miles south of its ultimate objective, the great round fort at Nizwa.

Meanwhile, the column's commander, Brig. J. A. R. Robertson, flew to Bahrain to consult with the British political resident there about future strategy concerning Firq.

The rebels' resistance came from well-concealed sniping positions inside the narrow alleys. But the Sultan's British-offi-

RUSSIA SHIPS ARMS, PLANES INTO YEMEN

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is aware that there have been six—possibly, seven—shipments of Soviet arms to the Arab Red Sea Kingdom of Yemen, a foreign office spokesman said today.

He told his daily press conference that he understands these shipments included a number of planes. There were also about 50 Soviet instructors or technicians in Yemen.

He said he could confirm that these supplies are being delivered and "I think the supply started about the beginning of the year."

Thousands Flee New Hurricane

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—A gulf hurricane packing winds up to 90 miles an hour bore down on the Louisiana-Texas coast today. Thousands of persons fled inland to avoid a repetition of the Hurricane Audrey disaster.

Rising tides along the same stretch of coastline that was battered mercilessly in June heralded the approach of the new hurricane, nicknamed Bertha. Hurricane-force winds were reported unofficially about 55 miles south of the Louisiana shoreline shortly before 2 p.m. EDT.

Residents who only recently moved back into such stricken areas as Cameron and Pecan Island, La., left their homes for inland cities. The Red Cross opened refugee centres in Lake Charles and other South Louisiana cities.

Cameron, site of some 500 deaths in the Audrey disaster, only last week began an ambitious rebuilding program. It was abruptly halted today.

Offshore oil drilling companies removed all their oil rigs—some 3,000 men—Thursday night, and today were sending their floating equipment inland.

Oil companies with equipment off the Louisiana coast reported their rigs "holding up pretty well" in seas churning with 15 to 20 foot waves.

The weather bureau's advisory at noon EDT located the hurricane, travelling roughly in the same path as its killer predecessor Audrey six weeks ago, about 140 miles southeast of Lake Charles, La.

G. L. Allen, a forecaster at the New Orleans weather bureau, said that movement would likely take it inland somewhere between the Louisiana-Texas border and a point south of Houston, Tex.

Movie Stars Must Testify Judge Rules

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—A shouting argument between attorneys enlivened unsuccessful attempts to prevent actor Tab Hunter from testifying in the trial of Confidential magazine about allegedly spicing goings-on in Hollywood.

Superior Judge Herbert V. Walker rejected the plea of Hunter's attorney, Gilbert D. Seton, to bar the actor's testimony from the trial.

But before he ruled, Seton and the Chief defence counsel for Confidential's agents, Arthur Crowley, squared off in a chest-to-chest argument that looked like Leo Durocher disputing a strike call with the umpire.

Atom War Thriller In Weekend Saturday

The gripping and grim story of what could happen in a sudden nuclear war begins in Weekend Magazine in the Times on Saturday.

It is a condensation of the new novel "On the Beach" by the famous writer Nevil Shute. His tale is based on the premise that the nations of the northern hemisphere have hurled all their A-bombs and H-bombs at each other and destroyed themselves.

As the deadly radio-active clouds resulting from the bombs begin to circle the earth the people of the southern hemisphere await the doom that is certain to come to them.

Mr. Shute has woven this into what he calls "a novel that could happen." The condensation will appear in Weekend for the next four Saturdays.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Almighty God, who hast called us to be followers of Thy Son, we confess before Thee our weakness and failure. We need a strength we do not find in ourselves. We need a courage greater than we possess. Make us graver, stronger, steadfast, and true. As men and women see us from day to day, may they take knowledge of us that we have been with Christ. In His name we pray. Amen.

WHAT'S BIRD IN HAND WORTH?

"Honey" the hummingbird is feeling pretty sassy today. But Tuesday, all alone in the back garden at the home of Mrs. Eric Badminton, 2560 Penrhyn, "Honey" was humming mightily. He'd lost his way home and was sitting forlornly in the grass, when Mrs. Badminton found him. Now he's eating honey and hopping about happily all day. "I'll let him go when he can fly," Mrs. Badminton said. She thinks the baby bird tumbled from his nest.

U.S. 'Puzzled' by Attack On Queen Says Archbishop

LONDON (UP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury predicted today that recent criticisms of the Queen's public speaking would "in the least" affect her forthcoming visit to North America.

U.S. reaction to the article by Lord Altrincham who said her speeches made the Queen sound like a "pragmatic school girl" was one of "puzzlement," the archbishop said or his return from a trip to New Haven, Conn., where he attended the World Council of Churches.

He said he had nothing to add to his statement in New Haven two days ago that the criticism by the peer who was snatched in the face by an indignant Briton "lacked wisdom."

Americans, he said, were asking "What is all this about?" He said he stood by his statement in America when he said "her subjects feel that the Queen fulfills their highest ideals in her combination of proper formality and restraint and full, intelligent and happy" relations with her subjects.

The archbishop said the criticisms would soon be forgotten. Meanwhile, the Daily Express today came out with the headline "It's that Peer Again" in reporting Altrincham's new conclusions on television Thursday night.

Among other things, the young peer said Prince Charles should be sent to a public school instead of the exclusive institution he now attends.

He also said the Queen takes too many holidays.

The News Chronicle reported the program with the headline "Altrincham Again," while the "Liberal Manchester Guardian" said "Lord Altrincham Stands Firm."

But the magazines Truth and The New Statesman gave full support to the 33-year-old Lord's campaign to cut through what he considered unnecessary crusty protocol at court.

Truth said "a widespread feeling exists, to the detriment of the monarchy, that the court is a shop closed to all but members of a small section of the population." The magazine also urged Her Majesty to employ professional speech writers to make her public appearances "warmer."

The left wing New Statesman gently chided the Queen for allowing herself to be identified with horse racing and, less politely, tabbed her royal entourage as belonging "to the realm of caricature."

LONDON, Ont. (BUP)—A Canadian army corporal, James Wainwright of London, Ont., today offered to pay the one pound fine for the man who slapped Lord Altrincham, who had recently criticized the Queen and her courtiers.

Wainwright said the action of 64-year-old ex-sergeant Philip Burbridge in London, England, was "heroic."

"Old Burbridge showed his loyalty to the queen," said Wainwright. He added that he would send the money to London.

Nikita Visit Hurts German Unity Plans

BERLIN (Reuters)—Western observers believe that Nikita Khrushchev's current East German tour has, if anything, made German reunification even more remote.

They say the visit, now in the third day of an expected seven, has followed a pattern predicted earlier: Strong support for the East German Communist regime, sharp attacks on Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his West German government, and deadlock on the reunification question.

The 12-man delegation led by the Soviet Communist party chief split up Thursday night for separate tours of East Germany, with Khrushchev and his group going to Leipzig and Trade Minister Anastas Mikoyan leading other delegates to Sassnitz, on the Baltic coast.

Tyson, a 37-year-old veteran of the Second World War, the Korean War and the Berlin airlift, piloted the big C-97 plane into Hilo, Hawaii, at 11:25 a.m. Thursday. Two of its engines had quit just beyond the point of no return on a flight from Travis air force base, Calif.

"It never occurred to me that we would ditch," said Tyson.

"I'm a coward," he grinned. "I can't swim very far. The water's cold."

More seriously, he said: "I'd determined to take things as they came. After the first shock of realizing we were in danger, I thought clearer and acted

Maybe Seeking Haven From Reds

(From Times News Services)

LONDON—With the Royal Navy watching curiously, two Polish submarines cruised slowly and mysteriously southward today along the North Sea coast of Scotland.

Diplomats in London speculated that the crews might be looking for a place to land to ask asylum from the Communist regime in Warsaw. The Royal Navy said they would get the usual treatment for visiting warships should they land.

The subs were first spotted off Aberdeen on the northeast coast of Scotland. Soon after daybreak a spokesman at Rosyth naval headquarters said the vessels were about 30 miles off the entrance to the Firth of Forth.

"They are just going quietly along," he said. "We don't know where they are bound for and we have not been in communication with them."

"If they should come into a British port they will be granted facilities normally accorded to visiting warships," the spokesman said.

A Western diplomat in London who declined use of his name raised the possibility that the crews might seek political asylum. He was the first to report that the navy had spotted the subs.

AERIAL CHECK

It was assumed that they had been identified as Polish by aerial reconnaissance, since there was no communication with them. Two British destroyers were reported following them.

The Polish Navy is known to have only four submarines—all pre-war—although Russia may have transferred modern ones to her ally.

In 1954 the crew of the Polish trawler Puszcuk overpowered the vessel's captain and political commissar and sought refuge at the port of Whitby.

Veteran coastguardsmen and fishermen on the rugged coast of Scotland said it had been "years and years" since any foreign submarines had been reported in the area in peacetime. They noted that the base at Rosyth was home to British submarines and it would be highly unusual for foreign submarines to enter the area.

The 35-year-old prisoner appeared in unpressed clothes for his arraignment. He was baggy eyed and spoke in soft tones, with a rather deep voice and a trace of a foreign accent.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William F. Tompkins described Abel as the head "of a most elaborate and intricate espionage" ring.

He said that Abel was "skillfully trained in the practice of espionage, skillfully trained in the art of avoiding detection and skilled in the use of aliases."

Tompkins opposed granting bail for the defendant, saying Abel was a national of the Soviet Union, had entered the United States from Canada illegally, concealed his presence here and "illegally obtained" secret information relating to U.S. national defence.

Spies Jailed For 5½ Years

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacob Albam, 64, a former Brooklyn tea and spice dealer and Mrs. Myra Soble, 52, were sentenced to 5½ years in prison each today for spying for Russia.

Her husband, Jack, 54, a third member of the espionage ring, was to be sentenced later. He was not in court.

All three pleaded guilty. Both Albam and Mrs. Soble appeared shocked when Judge Richard H. Levett pronounced sentence.

Throughout the preliminaries, the blonde Mrs. Soble wept softly.

B.C. Job Picture 'Not Calamitous'

The unemployment picture in British Columbia, while somewhat gloomier than last year, is "certainly not calamitous," the province's top employment officer said today.

William Horrobin, regional employment officer at the Vancouver office, told The Times he was concerned about "scarce headlines."

"While there is a considerably larger number of unemployed than a year ago, the problem is not drastic."

Some people are "crying blue ruin before it is upon us," he said.

At the same time, Mr. Hor-

robin said he could not be "too optimistic" about the situation this winter.

Employment had not picked up as expected following settlement of a number of industrial disputes, particularly in the coast logging industry, earlier this summer.

As a result the number of persons registered at unemployment insurance commission offices throughout the province is greater than at the same time last summer.

In Vancouver, there were 16,000 unemployed persons in July, compared with about 11,000 in the same month last year.

LABOR FORCE UP

During the year, however, there has been an increase of between 20,000 and 30,000 persons employed in B.C., with the total labor force in the province now about 505,000.

"When there is growth and expansion in all sectors of the economy it is natural that there should be an increase in unemployment figures," Mr. Horrobin said.

"We're still having growing pains in B.C.," he said.

An "unusually fast" increase of 89,000 in population of the province during the past year is also a factor to consider, Mr. Horrobin said.

Immigration and natural population growth have accentuated the unemployment problem.

"The picture is not as bright as last year," Mr. Horrobin concluded, "but it is not yet alarming."

In the Greater Victoria area, unemployment decreased by about 54 during the past week, the National Employment Office reported.

But there are still approximately 500 more unemployed than this time last year, partly attributable to an increase of several thousand in Victoria's population, including about 1,500 immigrants coming here.

Registered unemployed this week numbered 2,319 consisting of 1,662 males and 657 females. Last week the figure was 2,373 unemployed—1,707 males and 666 females.

Lumbermen's Party Ends In Tragedy

VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—Philippe J. Delesalle, 28, Vancouver, drowned early today during the annual gathering of the Hoo Hoo Club, lumbermen's fraternity, on the West Vancouver estate of J. Gordon Gibson, former Liberal MLA.

Other guests said Delesalle was pulled from the private swimming pool when it became obvious something was wrong but failed to respond to efforts at resuscitation.

West Vancouver police called Dr. Harold Dyer, North Vancouver coroner, who said death "apparently was due to drowning." He was to confer with police today about the matter of calling an inquest.

About 300 people, including many prominent B.C. business executives, were at the annual party. The Hoo Hoo Club, first formed in 1892, became active again during recent years after a period of dormancy.

Mr. Gibson, a partner in the W. F. Gibson and Sons logging company, was elected Hoo Hoo president in 1953.

The dead man was an official of the L. and K. Lumber Co. and was connected with the Abbotford Wood and Coal Co., operated by the Delesalle family.

'INDICATION' OF OUR TIMES' SAYS CHIEF

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chief Constable George Archer says there has been a marked increase this year in attacks on policemen and called it "an indication of our times."

"There continues to be a willingness in some quarters to decide differences with the police by violence," he told the Police Commission Thursday.

Four Trapped High in Alps

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP) — One of the climbers trapped on the sheer north wall of Eiger Mountain died today as 60-mile-an-hour winds howled around the peak, it was reported by Willi Balmer, chief of the Grindelwald rescue service. He said rescuers also had lost sight of the other three.

The climber who was reported dead by Balmer was one left tied to a rock and abandoned by his fellows so they could continue their fight for life.

The pilot of a Swiss rescue plane circled about 600 feet away.

"When we first saw the man, he was roped up tight to the rock," Balmer reported. "He waved toward us with both arms."

"He continued waving whenever we could manage to get near until his arms suddenly dropped down."

When the men were seen clambering up the north wall this morning, hopes rose that the good weather would hold.

Then the strong south wind whipped up.

At noon a grueling 2,500 feet still remained before they could reach the summit, and a chance to come down by an easier route. With one false move, death lay 3,000 feet almost straight below.

It is considered impossible to descend the overhanging face of the towering mountain in the Bernese Alps of Central Switzerland. The north wall has been scaled only about 20 times, and has claimed a number of lives.

The four climbers, believed to be Germans and Italians, had been almost motionless on the wall since Monday.

Queen Asks to See U.S. Football Game

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House announced today some of the major events planned for Queen Elizabeth's six-day October visit. The dates range from a football game to a full dress ball.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said that the Queen requested that an American-style football game be added to the Royal Itinerary. The game selected was one between the University of Maryland and the University of North Carolina at nearby College Park, Md., Oct. 19.

Hagerty said a detailed schedule for the visit of the Queen and Prince Philip Oct. 16-27 will be made public later. He emphasized that the engagements announced today are only the major events which have been agreed upon so far by London and Washington.

Hagerty also noted that while no talks between the Queen and President Eisenhower are listed, the two will have ample opportunity for informal and personal discussions because the Queen and Prince Philip will be residing at the White House during their four-day stay in Washington Oct. 17-20.

The schedule released today includes five formal dinners and also leaves room for a New York ticker tape parade.

Council Balks On Latest Sink Proposal

A long-standing dispute over sinks in housekeeping rooms flared again at city council Thursday and still appears far from settlement.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson's health committee, attempting to enforce a 1949 by-law which calls for the sink installations, was again overruled by council.

Latest proposal of the committee was that sinks should be installed "unless alternative facilities are approved as satisfactory by the medical health officer."

Two ratepayers' groups want existing rooming houses, exempted from the law. A majority of rooming house owners have already complied at considerable expense, and health officials are reluctant to change the by-law after most have complied.

Council balked at the new plan which would give discretionary powers to examining officials.

Warsaw Strike Ended

WARSAW (AP)—A five-day strike of meat packers has ended without settlement at Lodz, Poland's second largest city. It was accompanied by what the Communist organ Glos Robotniczy calls "demagogic attack on the party and its leadership."

Strikers demanded increased pay, among other things.

CORSICANA, Tex. (AP)—Dave Kuykendall, who claimed he was 114 years old, died here Thursday night. Until his last short illness, he said he had never been sick or consulted a doctor. He was a coal miner during the American Civil War.

Full-Time Agriculture Minister Named Soon, Promises Bennett

Premier Bennett said Thursday he took over the agriculture portfolio on a temporary basis last May so that he could gain direct knowledge of the industry's problems.

A full-time minister of agriculture will be named "in due course, and not too long a time," the premier said.

Asked by reporters if he was awaiting the result of three by-elections next month, Mr. Bennett declined to answer.

people compete in the oil business

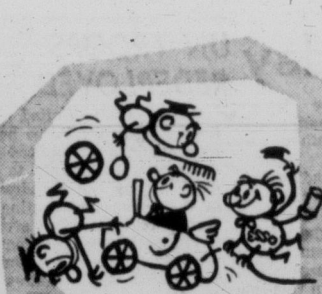

Did you know there are more than 10,000 people engaged in the search for oil in Canada? We know it, because we run into plenty of them each time we try to lease promising oil lands.

Did you know there are hundreds of skilled chemists and engineers in Canada's 42 refineries? We know it, because our own technical people have to work hard to stay ahead of the others in producing better products at lower cost.

Did you know Canada's oil companies employ thousands of salesmen to market their products? We know it, because every day our own sales people are competing with salesmen from other companies.

Edgelow Threatens to Punch Smith As 1-Way Roundabout Plan Passed

The Faustman Fountain Circle plan was adopted by Victoria council Thursday at a meeting marred by nose-punching threats of the scheme's chief opponent, Ald. G. I. Edgelow.

Proposed target was Ald. J. Donald Smith whose victorious taunts were salt in Ald. Edgelow's wounds.

"If Alderman Smith wants to keep needling me, I will ask your permission to punch him right in the nose," Ald. Edgelow told the mayor.

"... for I mean it. He's going to get it on the nose. Now that's for sure."

The outburst followed a six-three vote which approved a $30,000 permanent installation of islands, lights and one-way street approaches at the Hillside-Government-Gorge-Douglas intersection.

Work is slated to start in mid-September unless council grants the roundabout another reprieve. A similar decision to tear out the circle was reached in May then later revoked.

Acting city engineer Gordon Stanford said if the special traffic lights required for the intersection are ordered now they will be here in time to start the project at the end of tourist season.

He said the job would take one and a half months.

Under the plan, Government will carry one-way traffic south, and Douglas one-way traffic north, between Market and Princess Streets, a distance of five blocks.

A proposal by public works committee that $7,300 set aside to resurface Chatham Street between Government and Douglas, be used for resurfacing Princess in the same block, caused the Smith-Edgelow uproar and was turned down by council.

Chatham has been too long delayed, a majority of aldermen decided. They indicated the Princess development should be paid by the $40,000 city contingency fund.

LOW-VOICED

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow was debating the point when Ald. Smith made one too many low-voiced comments. He had crossed swords with Ald. Edgelow on the roundabout for months.

Ald. Edgelow had championed a group of Douglas Street merchants who felt one-way approaches to the intersection would reduce their flow of business.

Ald. Smith called them a "pressure group" and chided council for delaying action on that account.

Works chairman M. H. Mooney told council he had a new alternative to present if the one-way scheme proves defective. Drawn by city engineer J. C. Garnett's department, it could be superimposed on the

CITY COUNCIL BRIEFS

Aldermen Reject Car-Test Station

Plans for a Victoria vehicle testing station were tossed out by city council Thursday by a six-three vote.

Ald. J. Donald Smith told council only 34 accidents out of 1,143 which occurred here last year were caused by mechanical failure in vehicles.

"That's less than 3 per cent, while the national average is 5 per cent," he said.

He said 1,100 accidents were caused by "human failure."

"We should run the drivers through (a testing station) rather than the autos. A toughening up in courts will do more to reduce accidents."

Ald. M. H. Mooney, who with Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. Arthur Dowell supported the plan for a $100,000 testing station here, said 10 out of 15 cars in the city require adjustment all the time.

An expenditure of $300 is estimated.

Council approved a request from Capital Iron and Metals Ltd. to take over an Industrial Reserve lease previously held by junkman Harry Haigh.

The provincial government will be asked to grant a one-year trial lease.

Council forwarded a letter of thanks to Mayo Lumber Company which donated a new flagpole for Beacon Hill Park in memory of Mayo Singh and his wife, Bishan Kaur. The company is paying all erection costs.

All offending persons and companies will be told the city will enforce its smoke nuisance by law.

The city engineer may get a time limit for compliance with regulations which limit the density of smoke which may be released.

The B.C. cabinet will be asked to appoint a successor to the late E. W. McMullen who served on the Board of Debt Retirement Fund Trustees of Victoria.

An earlier proposal that grocery store owners who are members of the Independent Merchants' Co-operative Association be permitted to register civic voters, was approved.

Council will ask the attorney-general's department to appoint the grocers commissioners for oaths.

In response to a complaint, council pointed out it has no responsibility for new shopping hours laid down in the Municipal Act.

Further, it is impossible to force store owners to stay open on Friday nights as the act now permits.

The complaint was directed at butchers.

Council authorized the city manager and city clerk to advertise closing dates for voters' list registration.

Payment on the Farm

THE DIFENBAKER GOVERNMENT will ask Parliament to authorize the purchase of grain "on the farm." This phrase may not mean much to the British Columbian but it means a great deal to the prairie farmer. It does not mean, however, a system of parity farm prices, as promised by the Conservative Party in the recent election. That step, presumably, will come later.

At present the Federal Government, through the Wheat Board, buys all the farmer's wheat, sells it and returns the selling price to him.

But the Government does not guarantee to take all the wheat at any given time. It cannot, since the line elevators are overflowing and much grain must be stored on the farm, awaiting shipment.

The farmer is paid only for the grain he is allowed to deliver to the elevator and he is allowed to deliver only a fixed quota. For this he is paid a part of the final price likely to be secured by the Wheat Board, the remainder being paid to him when the wheat is actually sold.

The farmers argue that they should be paid for their wheat, in part anyway, whether it is delivered to the elevators or stored on the farm. There is obvious justice in this claim. How can a farmer, unless he is rich, continue to produce if he is not allowed to sell his crop privately, must sell it to the Government but can secure payment for only a part of it immediately?

The Liberal Government understood the justice of the farmer's demand but it was advised by the Wheat Board that payment "on the farm" was technically impossible.

How was the board to know what wheat every farmer held? How was the system of payments on undelivered wheat to be policed? What organization could keep count of this vast supply and make sure that every farmer was paid for his actual crop, no more, no less? The Wheat Board threw up its hands at this proposal.

The Diefenbaker Government, however, is determined to devise some machinery which can administer payments on the farm, probably through the local farm municipalities covering most of the prairies. It is to be hoped the Government will succeed in its plans.

This will please the farmer but it will not satisfy him. He wants not only quick payment for his work, like any other worker, but prices that may often be higher than those of the world market. He wants at least a guaranteed minimum price which he does not enjoy today (his position in this respect being quite different from the producers of butter or eggs, for example.)

It is in the problem of state-guaranteed prices that the Government enters its real difficulties, as the United States has found.

Once the farmer is guaranteed a price, and a relatively high price, he will go on producing as much wheat and other grains as possible, whether they can be sold at that price, or any price.

If they cannot be sold they must pile up in the Government's hands, unsold. If they are sold at a price lower than that paid to the farmer, the state, or the taxpayers, must take the resulting loss. The surplus and the losses in the United States under that system have been gigantic and the attempt to liquidate them has demoralized the world grain market, to Canada's great damage.

The Diefenbaker Government is pledged to follow some such arrangement, though its plans have never been specifically revealed. It has undertaken, at any rate, to see that the prairie farmers get a "fair" price whether the world market is willing to pay it or not.

This is a vast and incalculable undertaking, much more difficult for Canada than for the United States, since its cost will be proportionately much higher here. Grain is a small fraction of American production, a large fraction of ours.

Having arranged payment on the farm, the Government will be wise to think hard before it takes the final step into parity prices, surpluses and losses.

No Interference—He Says

WHILE HE DENIES THAT HE has any intentions of influencing next month's West German general election, Mr. Khrushchev's words in East Germany—indeed his presence there—constitute direct intervention.

The aging Chancellor Adenauer, head of the Bonn Government, faces a crucial test in the forthcoming contest. His pro-Western policies, his advocacy of a West German military contribution to western Europe's defences, his rigid opposition to Communism, have earned him strong opposition in some quarters.

Quite possibly Russian attacks on the Chancellor could win friends for him, rather than enemies. But there can be no doubt that the Kremlin can hardly wait to see Konrad Adenauer leave the political scene. He has been a bulwark of democracy in a central Europe torn by almost insuperable political and social problems.

Because of this, the forthcoming elections in the Bonn Republic are also crucial for the Western powers. An Adenauer defeat would strike a heavy blow at Western security. Western defence policy has hinged on West German participation, which could quickly collapse if the Chancellor lost office.

Indeed, in this regard, an election victory would provide only a respite, for at 81 the Chancellor cannot be expected to remain long in the hurly-burly of political office. Mr. Khrushchev may well afford to bide his time.

The Russian boss has made it plain in his Berlin speeches that German unification will take place only on Soviet terms. He dismisses the Western proposal for free general elections to determine the future of the two Germanys as "hypocritical." Obviously the truth is that he knows the Communists could not win East Germany in a free election with a secret ballot. His embarrassingly cool reception by East Berlin crowds must have made that still more plain to him.

Despite all the words of Moscow propaganda, it is Soviet force that still keeps the two sections of Germany separate. At the present moment apparently nothing less than a war could reunite the former Reich—a war which could destroy Europe, if not the world, in the process.

East Germany is not a strongly dependable satellite, but it is a valuable one for Moscow. And Mr. Khrushchev, on his rounds of fence-mending through eastern Europe, including Yugoslavia, has not hesitated to hint that Russian atomic missiles are ready, if necessary, to maintain it in that category.

Chancellor Adenauer can make no gains against that attitude. But he can, if re-elected, continue to hold the line.

Two and Two Make Five?

MR. J. E. BROWN, DEPUTY minister of municipal affairs, has been selected to give a night school course to district municipal officials on the new Municipal Act.

The purpose of the course, it appears, is to help officials to understand the workings of the legislation.

This, in many ways, is an excellent idea. When controversial issues arise, those who are required to administer the law in municipalities should know what they are doing.

There is, however, one anomaly in the arrangements which have been made. The course is to be given by the official who informed Premier Bennett three or four months ago that at least one section of the new Municipal Act is inoperative.

In addition to that section—covering shops closing regulations—municipal leaders have pointed to other "bugs" in the act. For instance, Victoria which once tried and rejected by popular vote the appointive system for police commissions would be required under the act to revert to the method it does not want.

The act is a major undertaking, consolidating many points under one general heading. It was not expected to be perfect when it was passed—as Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black has admitted.

Now the question arises: if municipal officials are to receive instruction on the legislation, will the controversial features in it be passed over? Will the instructor be in the position of explaining clauses which won't work? Or will the officials be urged to try to apply inapplicable regulations?

Perhaps the municipal officials are the wrong people for the course. The instruction seems to be needed more by the government side of the Legislature. Social Credit members, in spite of warnings from the opposition and pleas for delay to iron out kinks, gave Mr. Bennett docile support for passage without bothering to look into the consequences of regulations which cannot be enforced. They should now go back to school.

Any Wide Open Spaces Left?

ON Wednesday in this space I ended a description of the Vancouver Island of today with the suggestion that only more parks could save what is left of this vacation land for the use of those who want to enjoy it through camping and picnics. Almost everywhere you go up-Island now you will find that somebody has gone before you. And who can blame them? The good beaches, the view points, the idyllic stream or lakeside spots—they're either taken for private use or developed as commercial projects. That was bound to happen on such a wonderful bit of the earth's surface, especially when succeeding governments seemed to have no thought that conditions would ever change, that the population would ever grow, that what had happened in a thousand other places would also inevitably happen here.

Tobin

However, governments in general are not noted for foresight. Judgment based on looking ahead is almost a monopoly of private enterprise. Thus Vancouver Island, made for tourists and vacationers if any land ever was, today finds itself in a tight squeeze between industry and pleasure. The leisure-time needs of today have come upon us—without warning but without the warning being heeded. Almost all of the best locations have passed out of public control. You will enjoy them only by paying so much per day, if at all. Fortunately, the battle isn't completely lost. We have a number of parks already set aside, ranging from big areas such as Strathcona Park down to small recreation spots. They are part of the 112 provincial parks now available throughout British Columbia.

Some of these parks—including seven on the Island—contain camping sites. Others are available only for picnics. Some remain undeveloped. What there are are excellent and welcome. But we could do with more of them.

As the government brochure describing the parks system says: "Our campsites have become so popular—we find it almost impossible to keep our developments ahead of public needs." Since this was published some of the camp sites have been expanded. But they are barely holding their own against the demand. And with the inevitable population increase for which we are destined, as well as a growing interest in camping trips by everyone, there aren't going to be nearly enough.

The camp sites of the Provincial Parks Branch, which today is a part of the Department of Recreation and Conservation, are familiar to many British Columbians by now. There may be anywhere from half a dozen to more than a hundred camping units at each site. Each unit consists of a one-car parking space adjacent to a stone-and-grating fireplace, a heavy log table with benches, and levelled tent space. A garbage can goes with each "home." Privies are located through the area.

Each unit is situated on a winding lane and separated from its neighbor a few yards away by thick bush. There's a maximum of privacy under the circumstances. A water tap is nearby and usually cut firewood is available.

This arrangement provides all the necessities while still letting the visitors "rough it." And the provincial authorities have had the excellent judgment to make no charge for use. Because of this the campers feel that they are enjoying their parks as owners, instead of as paying guests. That is a very important distinction and should never be lost sight of.

A camp site is usually located close to the feature for which the park was established. Englishman's River Falls Park and Little Qualicum Falls Park, for instance, have their centre of interest—the falls—near at hand. Miracle Beach Park, between Courtenay and Campbell River, has a large camp site and a picnic site near the sandy shore.

The camps thus provide a place for lovers of the outdoors to stay one or more nights while touring the Island, as well as making it possible to enjoy the special scenic attractions in the neighborhood.

Last Resorts

As things now stand—with the increased population of the Island and the disappearance of wild land—these sites are almost the only easily-reached places left for the average camper to stay. That's why we're going to need more and more of them as time goes on—as more people take up residence here, as more people gain increased leisure time to spend in outdoor recreation.

The parks branch men are a dedicated group. Through the years, at times even against the opposition of their legislative seniors, they have fought for extension of the parks and camps program.

Constantly they are studying "new areas where parks and camps and picnic sites may be beneficial, they are reviewing statistics showing the use made of the camps, they are negotiating to obtain new land for the use of the public. In addition to motorists, they are trying to cater for skiers, motorboat travellers, and other groups.

Their efforts are being increasingly appreciated. Two million man-days of park use were recorded in this province last year—based on the unit of one person making one visit. Nine out of 10 of these users were British Columbians enjoying their heritage.

From personal observation, both on the Island and the mainland, I can report that the great majority of campers are in family parties—an encouraging development in an era of domestic and social unrest.

These chains of camping sites are destined to become an increasingly important factor in our social life—a source of sanity and healthful recreation that will prove ever more valuable as time goes on. But there must be more of them if we are to reap the full advantage.

As Our Readers See It

'Impossible' Roundabout

As an ex-Montrealer I was interested in reading in your paper of August 6 the "Engineer's" comments on the Decarie Blvd. "Traffic Circle."

From very recent personal experience with this circle I would assume that the engineer hasn't been in Montreal for some considerable time. Granted, on a somewhat larger scale, the Montreal circle physically compares with the Victoria Roundabout, but here the comparison ends. Morning, evening and rush-hour traffic at the Montreal Circle is impossible and plans have been under consideration for some time to replace it with an overhead crossing.

I concur heartily with the city of Victoria's plans to attempt to remedy the Hillside Roundabout problem, and trust that a satisfactory solution can be found. "AN EX-MONTREALER."

Another Organization

The age we live in, shorter working hours and more time for relaxing, has brought with it a greater need for learning how best to spend those relaxing hours. Many, I believe, have found pleasure and a better satisfaction in their daily lives through creative hobbies—satisfaction in creating with their own minds and hands—doing it themselves.

The great pity, in our fair city, is the lack of organization, so far at least, whereby those of like interests can get together, form many happy friendships with those of common ilk, compare, broaden their outlook and learn from the experience of the other fellow. This would open many more doors to the mind than is ready for it.

Truly this is a wonderful world we live in if we will only reach out and live it to the full.

May the day hasten when such an organization will be formed for the betterment of all so inclined.

'Educated'

Mrs. Teigs has singled me out as sadly lacking in "education" a la flou, floutation. I reply that it is questionable whether she has read, as I have, extensively both the case for and against flou, floutation. This plebeian is "educated" at least to the extent which, after all, is only horse sense, but those who parrot her aphorism (even some highly specialized professional minds) do not seem to have exercised this faculty in the matter, and I certainly do not "prefer the twisted words of Russian propagandists," which she, unwittingly, does. Rust on Hollyhocks

The response to my recent letter to you asking for the experience of your readers on the subject of "use of water from baths, the house, on flower beds, etc., etc." was so forthcoming that once again I take the pleasure of writing to your huge circle of gardeners to ask for guidance on what to do about the rust which has appeared this year, on my Hollyhocks.

Last year when taking over Vesuvius Lodge we found the terrace and flower beds in poor shape. Hollyhocks were everywhere. I dug up a number. In the spring I took all but one bud from the bulb (?) and replanted them in the bed against the side of the house, facing southwest.

The plants have done well but rust which was absent last year has made itself very apparent and the flowers have suffered. When in the original position the hollyhocks may have had the benefit of some clam shell in the makeup of the terrace. I have been told to spray with "sulphur, soluble in water" but I am in search of some substance to apply to the soil.

Not Christians

To "all intelligent adults and most particularly to open-minded Christians (quoting Mr. H. V. O'Reilly's letter to the Times, Aug. 6) the book by Ludwig Feuerbach is highly recommended."

All true Christians should be grateful for, and nominal Christians should take note of the quotations from the book, as their aim is "to change the friends of God into friends of men... Christians into whole men—not half animal and half angel—on the grounds that man is a god-maker and God has no objective existence" and "It does not follow that goodness, justice and wisdom are illusions—just because the existence of God is an illusion."

This reasoning "greatly influenced... I. H. Huxley... J. S. Mill... R. J. Ingersoll... and a host of others" Mr. O'Reilly approvingly affirms; and, naturally, because the men named were not even nominal Christians! But these are solely the Creator's attributes, which He to a limited extent bestowed upon man, otherwise they would be unknown to mankind.

Liable to Corruption

The Archbishop of Canterbury, speaking on disunity, and disagreement of the churches, before churchmen representing 170 million people, in New Haven, stated that "The Church is a living society, always liable to corruption."

So be it, he failed to state that Christ is the "Lamb of God that taketh away the Sin of the world." For that purpose was He born! And the Archbishop should know that Biblical prophecy, including the life of Christ, has been literally fulfilled almost to the last degree, a statement of fact well authenticated, and centering around Jerusalem, wherein shortly it will be "mission accomplished."

Pity the Poor President

AS a result of his newly acquired habit of staging public debates with himself on a whole series of issues—the budget, disarmament, the school bill, and civil rights bill—the President is being increasingly accused these days of being unable to make up his own mind. And yet, if you consider the kind of merciless pullings, haulings the President is daily subjected to, on an infinite variety of complex issues, you can understand and sympathize with his position.

Take, as a vivid example, the background story of the release by the House Appropriations Committee of certain closed sessions testimony by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson. If the English language means what it says (which Mr. Wilson has now denied) Wilson told the committee that an administration bill for a drastic change in budget procedures "might endanger the national security."

The bill, as Wilson of course knew, had the full, unequivocal, public support of the President. Thus the testimony release by the House committee placed Wilson in direct opposition to the President—a position from which Wilson has rather hastily backed down.

The Background

Now consider the background story of this latest Presidential trouble. The bill embodies a Hoover Commission proposal obliging Congress to appropriate money ahead only a year at a time, instead of making appropriations to be spent over a number of years, as at present. The idea is that the new system would force a yearly re-examination of all expenditures, and thus restore to Congress the control over spending, especially defence spending, which it has largely lost.

Hoover Commission publicists have claimed that this simple reform would save $3 billions a year. The claim is almost certainly wildly inflated. But it much impressed the President, who is no expert on fiscal matters. He accordingly came out strongly for the bill, and the Senate passed it unanimously.

Then the bill ran into the fierce opposition of two powerful old men—Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee, and the committee's senior Republican, Rep. John Taber. Cannon and Taber unquestionably know their way round the fiscal jungle, and they both concluded that the Hoover proposal was bad legislation and bad fiscal policy. As a result, the bill was stalled in the House.

Therefore, ex-President Hoover, who has a passionate pride in his handiwork, called on the President, to persuade him to give the bill a big Presidential push.

The President, who has an almost filial respect for his predecessor, amiably agreed, and a strong letter to the House supporting the bill was prepared for the President's signature.

When Taber learned of this planned Presidential intervention, he asked for an appointment with the President, and got it. Crusty old Taber argued fiercely against the bill.

His main point was that, far from saving money, it would have precisely the opposite effect. Because the first year's installment on some costly project might be small, Congress would approve it. Then the country would ultimately be stuck with the cost of the whole project. Besides, Taber said, the procedure was unworkable.

New View

The President was much impressed, and allowed that what Taber had said was "an entirely new point of view" to him. Soon thereafter, Rep. Clarence Brown, a sponsor of the bill and a member of the original Hoover Commission, got a White House call. The chances were that the President would not send his letter to the House after all, Brown was told.

Brown was furious, and telephoned ex-President Hoover in New York. Hoover telephoned the White House, and White House Press Secretary James Hagerty hastily issued a statement to the effect that the President was all for the bill.

This in turn stimulated Cannon and Taber to counter-attack. Their counter-attack took the form of releasing Wilson's closed session testimony against the bill. And Wilson, in turn, had to deny the plain meaning of what he had said.

There the matter now rests. Whatever the ultimate fate of the bill, what happened tells a lot about the position in which the President so often finds himself.

On the Spot

No one, least of all the President, would claim that he is an expert on everything. Yet he is called upon to make firm decisions about everything under the sun—oil imports, the budget, the clean bomb, the line between civil and criminal contempt, and heaven knows what all.

When all his advisers tell him the same thing, his problem is easy. But what is he to do when men whom he respects, who claim to be experts, tell him flatly contradictory things?

He is then rather in the position of the beleaguered Horatius on the bridge—"Those behind cried 'Forward,' and those before cried 'Back.'" The moral of the story, in short, is "pity the poor President." For he is a much over-burdened man.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"YOU PROMISED ME A CAKE ON MY BIRTHDAY. I WANT MY BIRTHDAY NOW!"

From Our Files

AUG. 9, 1897—At a meeting of the Victoria Ministerial Association the advisability of applying for an injunction to prevent the city having a band play in Beacon Hill Park on Sunday afternoons was discussed. A decision was postponed to a special meeting.

AUG. 9, 1917—The Carterville summer home of Baron Athelstan, formerly Sir Hugh Graham, publisher of the Montreal Star, was dynamited last night. The owner was not injured. He has been a strong supporter of conscription in Canada.

AUG. 9, 1937—Seven yachts from the Olympic Yacht Club are moored at the Enterprise wharf where they will remain another day.

Hand of a Vanished Touch

YEARS ago I went to the Athletic Park to watch Grover Cleveland Alexander pitch an inning or two for a barnstorming baseball club. I came away infinitely sad. "Ol' Pete," that legendary figure, that symbol of greatness, was bouncing the ball before it reached the plate.

Thus passes the glory of the world.

While "mine eyes have seen the glories," as Mr. Gallico once put it, I never achieved that status in sport. Still I knew when I had grown too old to do anything but dream of excellence in the game that interested me most.

The only time I step on a springboard now is under the influence of feminine flattery—a very intoxicating brew that makes a willing, if paunchy, clown of me.

But, like most men, I can look back with the magic of retrospection, on activities that I was "pretty good at." As a kid, according to the kindly transformations of memory, I was pretty good at salmon trolling.

We were all "pretty good at" fishing around the bay, just as we were pretty good at marbles in season, pretty good at football in school games, pretty good at climbing trees. Almost any man in middle age is convinced that he was pretty good at all sorts of things in boyhood.

DREAMS GROW MIGHTIER

I find these dreams of past competence growing mightier all the time as I return, day after day, week in, week out, from salmon fishing with nothing more than the minnows someone gave me for bait.

It seems inconceivable to me that I could drag a line and hook over so large an area of the Strait, from Clover Point to the head of Trial and beyond, without catching anything but kelp and the eel-grass on the bottom.

My fishing partner has done only slightly better. For his hours on the ocean he has a record of two dogfish, one snapper and a mild attack of nausea.

By the law of averages—so much liquid territory covered by lines and hooks—you'd assume that we would inadvertently have snagged a salmon. I have seen only one of the species landed off Trial this year and have watched two of them jump in the distance.

This is very depressing for a man who thinks he used to be pretty good at trolling when he was a boy. I have exhausted all the routine explanations of my failure as an angler.

I've worn threadbare the fable of the Sooke traps and their deleterious effects on sports fishing—a fable proved false for me by Chief Justice Sloan who did a fisheries survey once. I've disproved my own theories on the time and tide factors. I'm even tired of repeating to my partner, as we pass over a given spot, that I used to catch fish there.

Sadder still, I'm finding my cheerful explanation that it's the fishing, not the fish, growing thin. I've pointed to the majesty of Mount Baker lifting grandly in the northeast until my index finger has become rigid. I've spoken of the changing hues of the Olympics and the sweet tranquility of sunset colors until I feel like a kid with a messy paintbox.

JUST A HAGGARD GRIN

Now I'm reduced to a haggard grin and the unconvincing argument that among all this world's anglers I'm the outstanding conservationist.

This won't stop me from keeping up the pretence a little longer, but I'm cracking. I'll still say it's the fresh air, the wholesomeness of the pastime, the unequalled serenity of sky and sea that brings me out on the Strait. I'll continue my boring repetitions of prowess in boyhood. And I'll laugh bravely at what I consider my bad luck in fishing.

But with an honesty uncommon in the fraternity I must admit that I'm just no good at trolling any more. I've lost the touch, if I ever had it—which I doubt.

And, in confidence to the few who read this column, I'll confess that I'm the modified Pagliacci of Juan de Fuca, singing the modern theme variant, "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," with a broken heart.

Even without prior greatness, I have a more sensitive understanding now of Ol' Pete heaving them into the dirt at the Athletic Park.

W.H.O. Fights Asian Flu

NEW YORK—The best defence, it has been said, is a good offence—but it is hard to put that principle into effect when you know little about your enemy and lack weapons that can hurt him.

That is the problem faced by the World Health Organization in its current war against Asiatic influenza—the new virus disease that is sweeping through the Far East, that has established a bridgehead in the Middle East, and that has begun to make its presence felt in Europe and in North America.

People travel faster today than they did in 1918-19, when the "Spanish flu" spread around the world and killed between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 people. That means that viruses travel faster, too, and so the job of containing a potential world epidemic is more difficult. But there was no World Health Organization in 1918 to collect worldwide data and co-ordinate a world-wide assault on the disease; nor were there antibiotics and sulfa drugs to fight the after-effects, such as pneumonia, that did so much of the killing.

W.H.O. states that the disease caused by the new Asian virus is mild, and that very few deaths have been scientifically proved to be due to the Asian flu. But the world organization admits that there is an epidemic on, and it is using its 57 influenza centres in 47 countries in the fight to check its spread.

In India at the moment, more than a million and a half people have the flu, and the official death toll is over 500 and still climbing.

Almost every Far Eastern country has been affected, and cases have begun to appear in Europe, and in North America. W.H.O. believes that it is impossible to stop the spread of the influenza by quarantine, because "such measures are as costly as they are ineffective." The agency says there should be a minimum of interference with world traffic, although acute cases should be isolated.

This new kind of flu starts abruptly, and the first symptoms are sudden fatigue and weakness, often accompanied by a chill. Then come headaches, nausea and vomiting; with the fever to 103 degrees or higher. Along with this comes aches in the back and legs, and sometimes sore throat and a dry cough. The disease usually runs its course in three or four days. No medical treatment is effective, though drugs can be administered to relieve the aches and pains, and reduce the fever. The usual prescription is bed rest and isolation. For dangerous complications such as pneumonia, the antibiotics and sulfa drugs are normally effective.

The centre of the present epidemic runs in a sweeping arc from India to Australia and up to Japan.

It started in the northern part of mainland China in January. In February it spread south to Shanghai, and in March to Canton. April saw the virus invade Hong Kong, where there have been 500,000 cases and 44 deaths. Then it turned up in Formosa, with 2,000,000 cases; in the Philippines, with 1,500,000 cases and 1,200 deaths; in Singapore and Malaya, with 500,000 cases; in Japan, with 1,500,000 cases and five deaths. Then India, and Pakistan, and now there have been outbreaks in the Middle East and isolated cases in several European countries, especially The Netherlands.

VIRUS IN U.S. NOW

Cases have been diagnosed in the United States, and medical men have no doubt that the virus is in our midst in North America. The scattered "seedings" on this continent could spread to epidemic proportions now, or could die out; they might continue scattered appearances and lead to a flare-up in the autumn. Dr. Maurice Hilleman of the U.S. Army's Walter Reed Institute believes that a flu epidemic in the United States is "a good bet," and that the new disease could become known as "world flu."

Vaccine production has started in several countries, based on virus specimens collected and distributed by the World Health Organization. This might provide limited protection against the disease, but as for treatment once the flu sets in, there is none. Medical men in many countries are at work on the problem, and the speed with which a vaccine for the new type of flu was produced gives reason to hope that before too long the virus diseases will be not only preventable, but treatable, and even curable.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Gardeners Can Help Brighten Centenary

It is high time that we gardeners made up our collective minds to do something about celebrating British Columbia's centenary next year.

Of all projects, a garden is one which must be planned before it materializes. With two full planting seasons ahead of us, plans made now can be put into effect this fall and next spring with the assurance that results will be apparent early in the growing season.

Owners of new homes with gardens still unplanned will probably like to make a commencement in permanent planting, laying the foundation as it were for future development. A few trees and shrubs, well to be justified.

chosen and well placed, would be a fine way of celebrating the province's 100th birthday. Besides adding to the cash value of the property, such memorials grow in beauty, usefulness and interest through the years.

Other gardeners might wish to plant extra bulbs this fall for a fine spring display. As the summer annuals fade now, empty spaces should be prepared for later planting. It might be a perennial border for summer display which is desired. That too, can be planned now, while the summer flowers are still fresh in the mind.

Whatever the ideas may be, I think the gardeners of Victoria should put on a real good show next year. If the material used is permanent, so much the better—the improvement will be permanent, and our name as a City of Gardens will continue to be justified.

A VICTORY CLASSIC

EX-VICTIMS ASK JAPAN FOR AID SEMINAR TOLD

VANCOUVER (CP)—Many of the Asian countries overrun by Japan in the war now are looking to that country for a lead in their own industrial development, says one of Japan's top economists.

Speaking Thursday at a Japanese seminar at the University of B.C. Saburo Okita, the government's chief planner, said industrial firms with less than 300 employees represent 84 per cent of all Japan's industry.

Enterprises of this size are proving very attractive to Asian and African countries, he said.

MONTREAL, Aug. 8th—Seen the "picture gallery" at your grocer's yet? Noo... I don't exactly mean an art exhibit. I mean the sparkling new ROYAL INSTANT PUDDING "picture-packages." They're on his shelves right now. And they look so good, you feel like eating the pudding right off the package. They're a big help in selecting the puddings you want. Each flavor is beautifully pictured in full color right on the package. When you get them home, you know you're in for a treat. Royal Instant Puddings make cool, smooth-tasting desserts. And there's no cooking over a hot stove. Less washing up after. And for you mothers, just remember that Royal Instant Puddings are made with fresh, wholesome milk. So let those youngsters dig in!

TRAVELLING becomes a complete pleasure only when you can leave everyday cares and worries behind. So why take wallet-worry with you when you go on vacation? Carrying cash on a trip can be a constant source of anxiety. Protect yourself before you leave home by purchasing a supply of Travellers Cheques at the BANK OF MONTREAL. Their convenience and low-cost add a carefree bonus to your vacation. And, since prevention is the best protection against loss due to theft or fire while you're away, why not leave your valuables in the safest place in town—a Bank of Montreal Safety Deposit Box that costs but a few cents a day.

WHAT'LL IT BE TONIGHT?

Or for lunch? You'll have a host of zesty ideas if you keep a line-up of the delicious LIPSON SOUPS on your cupboard shelf as I do. Each flavor has a delight of its own. Lipton Chicken Noodle out-sells all others—it's so rich, yet delicate. Lipton Tomato Vegetable Soup is full-bodied and flavorful. Lipton Green Pea—mixed with cold water, remember!—has that spicy, "smoky" taste we all enjoy. And Lipton Onion Soup is a dream! Use them as soups—or in combinations with your casseroles, yes, even salads! (I'm thinking of how good two teaspoons of Lipton Onion Soup is tossed in a green salad!)

is tucking a fresh row of summer preserved fruits and vegetables on to the shelves in the basement. We housewives know the wisdom of buying the best produce—taking the greatest care in preparation—then sealing with the best of all—VICEROY RUBBER JAR RINGS, to keep our preserves as fresh as the day they were picked. Their secret? The fact that when Viceroy Rings are put under pressure the "rubber flows" around the sealing edge—filling irregularities and making a broad, firm seal. Viceroy Rings are odorless too, with no possibility of any taste from them. One hint—make sure your jar tops are level—not crooked or curved.

Smoke, Flames on Bridge Fail to Stop Ambulance

(From CP Dispatches) NEW WESTMINSTER—Two ambulance drivers drove through dense smoke and sheets of flame to complete an emergency run Thursday.

Kib Reid, 35, and Art Berry, 33, received an emergency call at 1:17 p.m. to 98A Avenue in Surrey where five-year-old Laurie Nermo had been struck by a car.

When they approached the Pattullo Bridge on their way to Royal Columbian Hospital here, the fire at the bridge was nearing its peak.

"We could see both sides of the bridge break into flames as we neared the approach," Mr. Reid said.

"There was no other traffic going through the smoke. The girl was unconscious and we had to keep going."

"At first it looked as if only the wooden railings were on fire. It wasn't until we came back we realized how bad the fire was."

Mr. Reid said the run was made in a record time of 15 minutes.

Regular traffic was resumed over the bridge two hours after the fire broke out in the timbers and plings beneath the southern end of the bridge.

"Black smoke from the burning creosoted timbers was soon billowing high over the bridge. Firemen battled flames in the piling and timbers about 50 feet above the ground. One fireman was overcome by the dense smoke. He was treated at the scene.

At the height of the blaze the blacktop surface was melting at the edges and boiling in the centre.

PHONES KNOCKED OUT PRINCE GEORGE—Seventy-five telephone circuits which were put out of order by a torrential rainstorm here Wednesday were still not restored late Thursday.

The Department of Transportation said the circuits were knocked out by lightning.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate rackets committee called for testimony today from an official of the union which Johnny Dio used to become reputed kingpin of New York's labor racketeers.

The committee sent the tight-lipped Dio back to the jail from which it borrowed him, after he invoked the fifth amendment about 140 times, and tabbed as its next witness Earl Heaton, outgoing president of the Allied Industrial Workers of America.

The group is a catch-all outfit formerly known as the AFL United Auto Workers.

The committee charged that Dio boosted his racketeers in this union's local, then transferred them into seven memberless "paper locals" of the teamsters' union in order to help his friend, James R. Hoffa, teamster vice-president, win control of the teamsters' organization in New York.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said the committee would ask Heaton about a $16,000 cheque made out to Dio, signed by Anthony Doria, secretary-treasurer of the UAW-AFL. This cheque was dated in December, 1953, while Dio was the union's New York boss.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE NORTH VANCOUVER—Two women, two children and a truck driver miraculously escaped injury Thursday when a dump truck went out of control on a hill here and crashed into two telephone poles and a car.

Trucker Aurelle Drotte, 24, told police he leaped from the moving vehicle after the brakes failed.

Before jumping he swung the heavy vehicle into the ditch, driverless, it sheared off a telephone pole, careened into an oncoming car driven by Mrs. Francis Stevenson, headed for the ditch again and crashed into a second pole.

port Weather Office said 88 points of rain fell in 24 hours.

CROWN APPEALS SENTENCE

VANCOUVER—The Crown is appealing against a six-month jail sentence given to escaped convict Frank Browning, 22.

Browning was sentenced by Magistrate Douglas Hume to serve the extra term at the B.C. penitentiary for escaping from Oakalla prison farm with five other prisoners in March. He had been serving a breaking and entering sentence of 18 months definite and 18 months indefinite.

The counsel said the committee also was curious about $80,000 which the union paid Dio when he retired as secretary-treasurer early this year.

BLOCK FAILURE PROBED IN FATAL CRASH ON CPR

ATTEAN CAMPS, Maine (BUP)—Railway investigators today are trying to learn why one of two Canadian Pacific Railway freight trains did not enter a siding through an automatic block signal to avert the head-on collision which claimed the life of one engineer and injured three trainmen.

The trains, a 52-car westbound train en route to Montreal from Saint John, N.B., and a 28-car eastbound train, were both travelling at about 30 miles per hour when they collided. Some 30 cars were derailed. The freights pass through Maine on runs between Montreal and Saint John.

Driver Freed; Ex-PM Declines To Give Evidence

BARRIE, Ont. (BUP)—An Essa township farmer who made headlines when his car allegedly swerved into one carrying former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, was acquitted of any responsibility in the accident Thursday.

Magistrate Gordon Foster dismissed a careless driving charge against Norman McGirr because of conflicting evidence.

St. Laurent was not hurt and declined to testify because he had not actually witnessed the collision.

Duncan Toughs Face Jail Term

DUNCAN—Police Magistrate Col. A. C. Sutton said he intends to stop rowdiness in the city and continued violations of the Motor Vehicles Act by sending offenders to jail without option of a fine.

"Most of the trouble with young people is being allowed to roam around too late at night," he said.

The magistrate sent Joseph Galea to Oakalla Prison for 60 days for assaulting a policeman, while Ronald Peters drew a $100 fine for driving while his licence was under suspension, and was warned "next time there'll be no fine."

Cash prizes and trophies will be offered for international long distance. Prizes also will be given for livestock, vegetables, flowers, handicrafts and cooking.

COURTENAY — RCAF personnel at Comox air base have collected $1,800 for the current United Appeal and $400 for the Red Cross.

United Appeal now has $7,500 of the $18,000 target sum being collected for 11 organizations in Courtenay and Comox.

Because of high costs, B.C. Power Commission has rejected all bids received for the general contract for construction of earth dams and tunnel intake at its Ash River hydro development in the Alberni district.

Contracts have been awarded to Belmont Construction Company of Vancouver for the tunnel work, and to Farmer Construction of Victoria for the powerhouse on Great Central Lake.

General manager Lee Briggs said today that in all probability a considerable part of the remaining general contract work will be done by the commission's own construction division.

Hassle Forces Delay In Civic Grant Plan

The annual disbursement of city grants was delayed two weeks by city council Thursday in the face of "who-gets-what" arguments.

Council finance committee, headed by Ald. Arthur Dowell had drawn up recommendations for gifts of $24,456 to 16 organizations. A total of 24 groups had applied for grants.

Council was asked by Ald. E. D. McEwen: "Why was the Salvation Army left out?"

MORE LIGHTS IN SOUTH END

$26,000 Modernizing Program For Nanaimo Street Lighting

NANAIMO—The B.C. Power Commission is starting a $26,000 modernizing program to convert the street lighting system in the south end area.

Existing street lights will be converted from series to multiples and added units will be installed.

Until 1932, the south end of the city was lit by the obsolete carbon lighting. The project just announced will replace the converting work done in 1932.

NANAIMO—The $30,000 centennial centre being built here at Exhibition Park is progressing quickly, officials reported today.

The building will provide 12,000 feet of floor space accommodating 72 exhibitors' booths. Roof and framing of a separate $20,000 "dream house" are complete.

NANAIMO—An ornamental fountain will be built on the new traffic island at Terminal and Nicol as a gift of the Italian-Canadian community in the city and district as represented by the Cavallotti Lodge and the Canadian Circle Club.

The fountain, which will be their project to mark B.C.'s centennial year, has been designed by Mrs. Arthur Kennedy, Departure Bay. Inspiration came from some of the fountains she saw during a recent visit to Rome.

Jules Mangano is chairman of the project committee and Ernie Nicoll is in charge of construction.

NANAIMO — The insatiable curiosity of a tiny chihuahua dog this week cost an animal expert and his wife several hours of hard work and 20 pounds of margarine.

WATER BOARD IN BUSINESS

Saltair Installs 2,000 Feet of Pipe

LADYSMITH — The Saltair Water Board is now in active business.

More than 2,000 feet of eight-inch main has been laid.

The board's bond issue sold for the high price of $97.68 per $100.

The 10-inch pipe for the main running from Stocking Lake to the Ladysmith reservoir was due to arrive this week.

Board Secretary W. Floyd says that the excellent price received for the bond issue will mean a discount of $5,000 on the total issue of $210,000. Possibility that the issue might sell for considerably less has been a matter of concern to the board.

Water from the city main will flow into a large concrete surge tank in which the float valve will be installed. From the surge tank it will empty into an eight-inch supply main which connects with the system on Davis Road.

Base for the surge tank has been poured, and the supply main has been laid and connected with 1,000 feet of eight-inch main on Davis Road.

LITTLE LEAGUE LAUNCHES B.C. PLAYDOWNS TODAY

The B.C. Little League playoffs were scheduled to open this afternoon at Jaycee Park between Victoria's American League All-Stars and Prince George All-Stars. Tonight's game will match North Vancouver Jaycees and New Westminster Easterners at 6 p.m.

Saturday games will be played at 2.30 p.m., when losers of today's action will play in a consolation game, and at 6 p.m., when the winners will play in the championship tilt.

Winners of the B.C. Championships will represent the province in the Regional Playoffs at Port Orchard, Washington, later in the month.

Not Only Good But Modest, Too

A modest, bespectacled youngster from Los Angeles has been the talk of the B.C. Open Lawn Tennis Championships at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club this week.

Taking the seeded players one by one, stocky, left-handed Ron Schoenberg has moved steadily and undramatically through the flights until he now finds himself pitted against top-seeded Merwin Miller of Pasadena.

"I am as surprised as anybody at getting so far," said Schoenberg Thursday. The only reason I can think of is that all my opponents were as strange to grass courts as I am."

What he, and the seeding committee, seem to have neglected to mention is that Schoenberg was the third-ranked junior in the United States only a few short years ago.

ELLIS OUSTED

Schoenberg downed, third-seeded Stan Ellis of Pepperdine College, 6-2, 6-2 Thursday.

Miller and second-seeded Butch Krikorian of the San Jose College sports staff, teamed up for a men's doubles game against Mike Crane and Don Gale, beating the young stars 3-6, 6-4, 6-0.

The two top men split in the mixed doubles with Miller going with Ben Davy, of Vancouver, to down Myria Peterson, Victoria, and Gordon Davis, Washington, 6-3, 6-3.

Krikorian joined with Connie Wilford to down George Gardner and Bob Peskett 6-4, 6-4.

A real battle is shaping up between the first and second seeded men as they move into the semifinals of men's singles and mixed doubles with the probability being that they will meet in the finals in both events. They're teamed up in the men's doubles play.

Today's late draw follows:

4:00 p.m.—Semi-finals of junior veterans.

5:30 p.m.—Mixed doubles semi-final Wilford and Krikorian vs. Lovatt and Ellis.

6:00 p.m.—Cribbage and Hedder vs. Parker and Smith.

6:30 p.m.—Lovatt and Danby vs. Krikorian and Wilford, Hoff and Grant vs. Finney and Moran.

After watching Merwin Miller of Pasadena drop opening set of men's singles match at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club Thursday, Butch Krikorian (left) reminded his doubles partner of expected date in Saturday's singles final of B.C. tennis tourney. Top-seeded Miller went back to take next two sets from Don Gale and move into today's semifinals. Second-seeded Krikorian, a San Jose teacher, had already gained semis. (Times Photo.)

No Foolin', Sam Putts; Balding Third in Tam

BASEBALL SCORES

CHICAGO (UP)—Samuel Jackson Snead, who in 23 years has parlayed golf stick and a ball into some $300,000, today had his eye on $50,000 more, the jackpot of "Tam O'Shanter's gold-lined 'World' Open."

Snead, 45, balding and on the pro circuit since 1934, showed the youngsters how to do it Thursday when he blistered through the "World's" first round with a seven-under-par 65. Usually his own worst enemy on the greens, Sam needed only 32 putts to get around sprawling Tam. He sank a 12-footer for a birdie three on the first and a 13-footer for a birdie four on the second.

Right behind Snead going into today's second round in the four-day, 72-hole $101,200 tourney, was Jerry Barber, Los Angeles. Barber equalled Snead's 32 for the front nine, but lapsed a bit coming in and settled for a 66. Al Balding, Bigwin, Ont., took third place with a five-under-par 66-31—67.

KESSELRING CLOSE

Gerry Kesselering, Toronto, had a one-under-par 34-37-71, while Stan Leonard, Vancouver, shot a 38-37-75. Rudy Horvath, Windsor, trailed with 36-42-78.

Top spot among the women pros was held by Marilyn Smith, Wichita, Kan., who marked her first day as new president of the LPGA by turning in a five-under-ladies-par 71.

Heading the men amateurs was Bobby Ross Jr., Springfield, O., with a 71 and a one-stroke margin over defending "World" amateur champ Ward Wetzel, Williamsport, N.Y., and Don Cherry.

Somewhat out of the running was "All American" pro winner Roberto De Vicenzo, Mexico City, who carded a par 72.

Thirty-three professionals broke par. Tied for fourth among the men pros with 68s were Shelly Mayfield, Long Island, Hike Souhak, New York, and Dow Finsterwald, Bedford, Height, Ohio.

HOPES FOR BIG ONE

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Interest and enthusiasm have always been there, but now that he is going after the Canadian junior championship, Bill Wakeham is starting to take golf seriously.

For instance, he's taking lessons.

The 16-year-old Victoria-born golfer this year won the Uplands junior and handicap championships, the Victoria City, Island and B.C. junior crowns, all without the benefit of formal lessons from a golf pro.

Wakeham, five-eight and 140 pounds, paid for lessons for the first time during the past week. He brushed "a little rust" off his swings and now believes he's hitting the ball "better than ever."

Lessons, He Says, Remove Rust

"Actually," Bill said, "I did take a lesson on grip. That was some time ago. Otherwise, I learned most of my golf from dad."

Bill also acknowledged that he's picked up numerous helpful hints from "the good golfers around the clubs" as well as pros Joe Pryke and Walter Gravin. (Wakeham is a member of both Uplands and Gorge Vale clubs, taking up the dual membership principally in an effort to gain as much competitive action as possible.)

A great admirer of Ben Hogan—almost to a point of idolization, Wakeham has displayed keen interest in golf from the first moment he picked up a club. His father, once a five handicap player, and Bill both used to get up for a game starting at 5 a.m.

"If he's not at work, or eating or sleeping," reports Mrs. Wakeham on her son's golfing interest, "then he'll be out on the course."

An all-around athlete who played Little League and Pony League baseball as well as hockey, Bill manages to get in at least one 18-hole round of golf every day along with "two or three hours" on the practice tee.

Bill, accompanied by his father, leaves for Vancouver next Tuesday to join the B.C. Willingdon Cup team for the trip to the Canadian championships in Winnipeg next week.

Bob's Worries Go; Cards' Woes Grow

Chicago Takes Third Straight From Cardinals

By United Press

Even if they don't do much the rest of the season, the suddenly awakened Chicago Cubs appear to have saved manager Bob Scheffing's job for 1958.

Things didn't look too bright for Scheffing a few weeks ago when the Cubs flopping in and out of the cellar, but today they own a six-game winning streak—their longest in two years—and bossman Bob no longer seems in danger. They're playing like champs right now.

Cubs swept a three-game series from the Cardinals by beating them, 4-3, Thursday behind the combined eight-hit pitching of Moe Drabowsky and Dave Hillman. Drabowsky gained his eighth victory.

LOOSENS UP

The once-tight National League pennant race began to unravel a bit as a result of the Cubs' victory over the second-place Cardinals. Milwaukee increased its league lead to 2½ games with a 5-3 triumph over Cincinnati, and the Giants dropped Brooklyn five games back by walloping the Dodgers, 12-3. Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh, 6-3.

In the American League, the White Sox shaved the distance between themselves and the first-place Yankees to five games with a 7-4 decision over Kansas City as Washington beat the Yanks, 6-1. Baltimore defeated Boston, 3-1, and Cleveland topped Detroit, 3-1, also.

Red Schoendienst's two-run single in the eighth inning gave the Braves their 11th victory over the Redlegs in 13 meetings this season. Schoendienst came through after Cincinnati tied the score on back-to-back homers by George Crowe and Frank Robinson. Lew Burdette was the winner.

Giants jumped on Sal Maglie for four runs in the first inning and rapped his successor, Don Bessent, for five more in the second as Ruben Gomez scattered seven hits for his 12th triumph. Giants pounded out 14 hits, including homers by Hank Sauer and Willie Mays.

Veteran Earl Torgeson was the big man in the White Sox' victory over the A's as he drove in five runs with a pair of home runs and a double. Billy Pierce, bolstered by Gus Zernial's three-run homer in the third inning, failed in his bid for his 16th victory but reliever Gerry Staley took over in the fourth inning and blanked Kansas City on five hits in the rest of the way for his third triumph.

Washington's victory marked the first time in three seasons that the Senators won a series at Yankee Stadium. Eddie Yost opened the game with a home run off Art Ditmar and the Senators were always in command thereafter.

Vic Wertz drove in two of Cleveland's three runs with his 19th homer and a sacrifice fly to help Ray Narleski notch his ninth victory against a single setback.

ROMP TO 12-8 WIN

Timbermen Bop Skidding 'Bellies

New Westminster Salmonbellies have lost only five games on their home floor during the Intercity Lacrosse League season. But three of them have been to Nanaimo Timbermen.

Inability to dominate the Mann Cup champions on the small Queen's Park Arena surface trimmed the Salmonbellies' chances of moving into the Western Canada final against Victoria Shamrocks to a flickering hope Thursday night.

Needing a victory to clinch a second-place finish and the advantage of an extra home game in the semi-final playdown with the T-Men, the slumping Salmonbellies followed their Wednesday night loss to Shamrocks with another listless effort and dropped a 12-8 decision to Nanaimo, at New Westminster.

Victory moved the Timbermen within a single point of the runner-up Salmonbellies and they can nail down the second berth with a win over Vancouver in the final league game at Nanaimo Saturday.

Probably more important than the final positions is the unexpected slump which has hit the 'Bellies in their last two outings. Nanaimo, although trailing, 2-1, after the first quarter, outplayed the Royal City crew decisively most of the way and now appear an odds-on choice to take the semi-final set.

Alf Shuker stopped 22 shots on the Nanaimo nets in an outstanding performance. Stan Joseph, arriving after substitute goalie Harry Preston had yielded five goals in the opening half, was peppered with 14 shots in the third period and was beaten seven times on 24 drives in the final two quarters.

Gary Pays Off On Penalty Shot

It was a do-or-you-don't-and-he-did situation for Gary Druce in the midst of the division of the Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association at Stevenson Park Thursday as he scored a penalty goal with less than 10 seconds to go to tie Saanich Farmers 3-3 tie with Oak Bay.

Oak Bay bounced back in their second game of the day with a 7-5 win over Victoria City.

Jerry Baines figured strongly in the win as he drove home four of the Oak Bay goals.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Most salmon runs have been pleasingly early this year, but what has happened to the first main run of springs at Cowichan Bay?

Many anglers are convinced the first big run of salmon heading for spawning grounds has yet to arrive, and although they have been predicting the "any day" appearance of the run for more than two weeks, it appears they could be right.

There has been an occasional good flurry, but tyee-sized fish are still missing and fishing generally has yet to come up to the standard normally offered at Cowichan Bay during this part of the season.

They could also be wrong. A big concentration of salmon was finning in front of Genoa Bay one evening and a good number of springs are moving up the river. The expected run may have come and gone. If so, there is consolation in the thought that a large escapement of spawning salmon should help fishing in the cycle year and following runs may stick around longer.

In fact, things seem to be shaping up for a busy weekend. There was some good action Wednesday night and a few good catches Thursday morning.

Eddie Brennon registered the largest catch Wednesday—a 28½-pounder—while Felix Luckovitch topped Thursday morning's entries in the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's ladder derby with a 19½-pounder.

Bucky Kennett couldn't shake his recent Cowichan Bay jinx and lost a big one Thursday, but George Syrotuck and Ed Mould came in with three good-sized springs and Keith Mawbey weighed in an 18-pound, seven-ounce specimen.

After almost three weeks of the Cowichan ladder derby, there were only 32 of the 50 available rungs filled at noon Thursday. Heading the list was H. Wadsworth's 28.15-pound entry and R. J. LaRiviere was hopefully holding down the 32nd rung with an eight-pounder.

Brennon moved into second place with his Wednesday catch while Hugh Gibson was holding the third rung with a 26.06-pound entry. The derby continues until August 24 and the top 50 anglers will qualify for the Sept. 1 fish-off.

Coho are providing most of the action as good fishing continues off the Victoria waterfront. But a few whopping springs, like the 39½-pounder Dr. Hugh Borsman took off Fulford Reef Wednesday evening, are testing tackle now and then.

A good number of coho were brought in at Oak Bay Boathouse Wednesday. Although they only boated two coho, Charley Guiguet, Stan Williams and Jerry Maxwell had some fast action while using green-and-white bucktails off Discovery Light. Strikes were numerous and seven silvers broke away almost within netting distance.

Best salmon fishing still appears to be in waters between William Head and Otter Point, where a shortened, green Hoochy-Koochy, used with minnow and flasher has been a hot coho lure.

At Saanich Inlet, most of the larger springs appear to be hanging around the Goldstream end, but coho and jack springs are providing interesting fishing in all parts of the Inlet.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Jarvis brought in salmon limits at Goldstream Thursday morning while M. Alexander, A. Brayshaw, John Law and Art Mawer were among those who limited Wednesday. Brayshaw topped his catch with an 18½-pounder.

Mawer, Bert Nex, Don Robbins, Bill Heath and Pat McLean, who had a 22-pound spring, accounted for limits Tuesday. Coho were hitting Tuesday evening off Senanus Island, where A. E. Longland reeled in a 10½-pound silver. McKenzie Bay has also been a good spot and things are picking up again off Deep Cove and Mill Bay.

Tickets for the August 18 fish-off of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby are being picked up at a fair rate but it's a good bet that several qualifiers will be unhappy after forgetting to pick them up before the deadline next Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

Tickets will be on sale at 1225 Government Street until 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. At that time, unsold tickets will be counted and a pick-up list announced. Anglers on the new list will then have until 5:30 Saturday to collect their tickets.

Gorge Just Getting Set For Playoffs

The Senior "A" Men's Softball League title has been in their pocket for some time now, but Gorge Hotel batters are still sharpening their home-run eyes for the playoffs.

Ab Wiebe helped win his own game Thursday night against Half Way House as he clipped a pair of homers over the left-field barrier to drive home three runs in Gorge's 6-5 victory.

He had company in the slugging department. Teammate Leroy Bond hammered out a homer in the third and Half caused quite a stir among the galleries by eliminating Mrs. C. F. Spalding of Greenwich, Conn., one up.

Miss Stanhope, whose game has been improving steadily throughout the tournament, had to make a strong finish down the back nine to put her match with the capable Miss MacWha.

Half Way House fell down in the RBL department, leaving 10 runners stranded on bases.

SEATTLE HAS GOLD CUP FEVER

Speedboat-Wacky Town

SEATTLE (AP) — On Gold drivers of the assorted hydro-wacky town, everybody tries to ready qualified for the 50th running of the Gold Cup, which is limited to 21 starters.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then Ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times. Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Patricia Simpson, age 13, of Richmond, Va., for her question:

How are icebergs made?

Did you ever wonder what would happen if ice did not float? When a pond froze, the ice would sink to the bottom. It would be hidden from the warm spring sunshine and perhaps never melt. Next year a new layer of ice would form and sink. Pretty soon, most of the rivers, ponds and some of the seas would be frozen solid.

So let's be glad that ice floats, even if ships do have to dodge a few icebergs. Ice floats because water expands as it freezes. A cubic foot of fresh water weighs 62 pounds. A cubic foot of ice only 56 pounds. The ice floats because it is lighter than the water. In fresh water ice floats with about nine-tenths of its bulk below the surface. But icebergs float in the sea. And sea water is more buoyant than fresh water on account of its load of dissolved chemicals. The icebergs are lighter by comparison. The monstrous white palaces which threaten the sea lanes drift along with six-sevenths of their bulk below the water.

Each iceberg is made from fluffy snowflakes. Winter snows fall on the polar regions, layer upon layer. And snow has weight. The top layers press down onto the lower layers, packing the snow flakes into a solid mass. Soft drifts of snow are pressed into hard sheets and fields of ice. Summer thaws melt the surface into trickles and streams of clear water. New frosts freeze the water in glassy ice. A glacier forms, many feet thick. For summer is not warm enough to melt all the snow that fell through the winter.

Such glaciers form on Greenland's mountains, around the Arctic Sea and over the whole continent of Antarctica. Year by year, new ice and snow are added to these glaciers. Something must be done, otherwise they would grow to cover the earth. Nature has a slow way and a fast way of getting rid of her extra ice, of trimming the edges of her glaciers down to size.

The edges of a glacier melt away in icy streams. The fertile valley around Salt Lake City is watered with streams melted from the snow-capped Watch mountains. Green-land's ice caps are freezing cold the year round. But the lower edges of the icy tongues reach down the warmer slopes and summer melts them into gushing streams. The sea, always warmer than the land, licks at the edges of the vast polar icefield, melting them into water. Nature's quick way of trimming her glaciers down to size is by icebergs. The glaciers and giant icefields grow outwards from the centre. The central weight of the vast mass is forever pushing old ice out towards the edges. In some places, the glaciers face the sea as sheer cliffs of ice. These areas are pushed from behind by the weighty icefield, and pounded in front by the tossing waves.

Sooner or later, great chunks of ice are weakened under the strain. There comes a thundering, tearing crack. A section of glacier breaks free and spills into the sea. An iceberg is born. From now on it is at the mercy of tides and currents. Its temperature is lower than the sea water. It begins to melt, pouring fresh water into the salty ocean.

Sooner or later it is caught in a current bound for warmer regions. Melting is speeded up and the chunk of hard ice shrinks and shrinks. Our northern iceberg, even one a mile wide, does not last many days when carried on a current bound for Bermuda.

Andy sends a Hammond's Ambassador World Atlas to Joan Hill, age 11, of Philadelphia, Penna., for her question:

How large is the island of Jamaica?

The beautiful isle of Jamaica covers an area of 4,539 square miles. This makes it 1,539 square miles smaller than the state of Connecticut. The island is a jewel of year-round summer climate, where gorgeous birds bedeck the lush green foliage. For Jamaica sits in the warm tropical waters of the Caribbean seas.

The summery island is long and narrow, 144 miles in length and 40 miles wide. It is the largest and richest of the British West Indies. Cuba, pearl of the Antilles, is but 90 miles to the north. And Jamaica is of geographical and strategic interest to the United States because it is only some 550 miles from the Panama Canal.

Russians Map Scheme To End House Shortage

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government announced plans Friday with which it hopes to end the critical shortage of housing in this country within 12 years.

A resolution of the Communist party central committee and the council of ministers called housing one of Russia's most urgent problems. It blasted shortcomings of the construction industry.

It blamed the shortage on a rapid growth of population, the rise of urban industrial centres, and "serious shortcomings" in housing construction.

The government called for a revision upward of construction goals set in February, 1956, by the 20th Communist party congress.

For the current five-year plan ending in 1960, housing construction will be increased to 215,000,000 square metres of floor space from 205,000,000.

'Copter Averts Crash

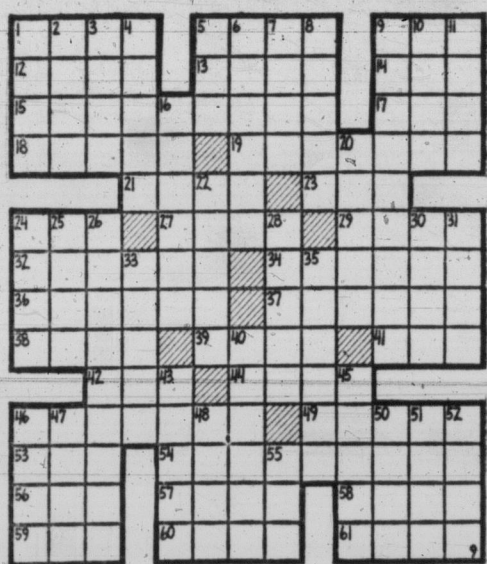

GENOA, Italy (AP)—An Italian police helicopter was credited with preventing a grade crossing accident. The crew, during a routine flight, spotted a truck stalled on the crossing and saw a train approaching around a bend. They flew alongside the train and signalled until the engineer stopped, several hundred yards from the stalled truck.

PUZZLE FOR POSTMEN

Newfoundland Towns Double Up on Names

BY IAN MACDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—If post office men on the Canadian mainland had to deal with Newfoundland place names they might dive for the nearest bottle of headache remedy, but postal workers here take it in their stride.

How would you deliver a letter to a Mr. Edmond Briggs, at Little Bay, Nfld., when there are six Little Bays in the province? Postmaster A. D. Campbell says "I bet I could get it to the right destination 99 times out of 100."

"People in this part of the country don't travel a great deal," he explains. "As a result it's not hard to tell which section of the province a person is from by his last name."

REGIONAL MARK

However, to avoid confusion it's suggested such a letter should be addressed to Little Bay, Notre Dame Bay; or Little Bay, Placentia Bay; Little Bay East; Little Bay Island; Little Bay West or Little Burnt Bay. The big bay area designation sorts out the various Little Bays.

Then there is Little Harbor on Trinity Bay; Little Harbor Deep; Little Harbor East and Little Harbor Twillingate. The list of such bays and harbors is a lengthy one, including three English Harbors and two Fresh waters.

"But," says Mr. Campbell, "the change is so slow it seldom causes trouble. Sometimes, however, oldsters always refer to their community with an affectionate nickname, and the occasional visitor may never learn the proper designation."

ANGELS AND ANGLES

Years ago people were quite happy to live in Angle's Cove, until a politician came along and told them they were angels.

not angles. Now it's Angel's Cove. But the original name had a colorful history.

When John Cabot spotted Newfoundland in 1497 he cried "Bona Vista," or "good sight." In 1501 Cortereal came along to claim Cabot's land for the king of Portugal, landing at Cape Bonavista where he began drawing maps.

For his map-making Cortereal had to have a fixed point or angle to start from. And that's how Angle's Point was named.

Mr. Campbell's list of mail stations also shows a place called Kitchuses. He explained that the community was built around a spot occupied by Kit Hughes' tavern. "The boys used to say 'I'm going up to Kit Hughes' and the words eventually ran together."

Migration often brings about a change in postal districts. At one time there were three Bear Coves but today there is only one and to make it easier there's only one person living there.

Since Newfoundland entered the Canadian Confederation in 1949 more than 20 place names have been altered by a board specially designed for the purpose, to avoid duplication.

"These changes don't bother us," said Mr. Campbell. "If you really want to confuse us, give us a letter to deliver to Windsor, Nfld., Windsor, N.S. or Windsor, Ont."

Flood Victims Appeal

GENEVA (CP)—The League of Red Cross Societies Thursday issued an appeal for emergency relief for 40,000 flood victims in Bulgaria. In a request for aid, the Bulgarian Red Cross Society said it urgently needs supplies of medicines, disinfectants and blankets as well as cash grants.

Victoria Scout Scores Big Hit In Chain Saw Show at Jamboree

SUTTON PARK, Eng. (CP)—An English Scout passing the British Columbia section of this world jamboree camp stared in amazed disbelief.

Coming from the cluster of Canadian Scouts, dressed in natty green shirts and blue shorts, was the high-pitched whine of a power saw.

"Cor! Baden-Powell would turn over in his grave," the chain saw is causing something of a commotion among the jamboree's 35,000 Scouts, who have long regarded the hand axe as standard equipment.

"We're just keeping up with the times," says Phil Winterbottom of Victoria, giving the power saw an affectionate pat. "A hand axe is okay in an emergency, but this baby really does a job of work."

The B.C. Scouts brought the power saw to England to give daily demonstrations of logging techniques used in the west coast's lumbering industry. Besides the saw, they brought a huge cedar log, which they are cutting into planks for use on the campsite.

"We took some lessons before coming over," says Scoutmaster Harold Steves of Vancouver. "And believe me, the saw is also coming in handy in cutting up firewood from the tough English oak provided here."

Once Famed Indian Tribe Now Homeless

FORT HUNTER, N.Y. (UP)—About 50 Mohawk Indians were displaced persons today in the famous valley once ruled by their ancestors.

The question "Where do we go from here?" will be discussed by the Indians this weekend when the chiefs of the Iroquois League have a powwow here.

The Mohawks, about 50 in numbers, are seeking a permanent place to pitch their teepees.

They have been living in tents along the banks of Schoharie Creek, in the valley which bears their name. They were displaced recently from their northern New York and Canadian homes by St. Lawrence Sea-way construction.

Their present encampment, a short distance from the state thruway, has to be moved. The creekside village is in danger of flooding, and the ownership of the land is in doubt. The Indians claim it's theirs, the state isn't sure who owns it, and a local farmer claims to have deeds for the property. He says the Indians are "squatting."

ated their campsite with models of Indian totem poles and a large painting showing a typical mountain scene.

David Field, Frank Buffam, Bob Gibson and Ron Smith, all of Victoria, have been mixing camp activities with sightseeing visits to nearby towns, including Stoke-on-Trent, where they watched a professional soccer match—"the standard of play is much higher than at home."

The B.C. contingent entertained Ghana Scouts at a campfire and singsong Thursday night.

Ontario Firm Gets Big Job For Russians

NORTH BAY, Ont. (UP)—The Great Northern Woods Co., a 10-year-old North Bay firm, has signed a contract with the Soviet government for construction of a $1,000,000 wood-working plant near the Arctic Circle.

The plant will be located at Archangel, a port on the White Sea.

R. W. L. Laidlaw, president of Great Northern Woods, said his company would be responsible for supervising construction of the plant.

Mr. Laidlaw said a full crew of engineers and other workers from North Bay would leave for Archangel next June.

TORONTO (BUP) — The increasing value of the Canadian dollar over its United States counterpart has left many Americans a little bit disturbed and bewildered. Canadian tourists and travellers found this summer.

The fact that any other nation's currency could be "harder" than the U.S. dollar seems to have hit American pride where it hurts the most, this reporter learned in a transcontinental automobile trip through the States.

While the feeling isn't in the order of an international unpleasantness, Canadians who have gone to the States neglecting to first exchange their money report many instances of leading U.S. business firms refusing to allow any premium on the Canadian dollar — now quoted at its peak of $1.055 in U.S. funds.

Those companies which do allow premiums, notably large department stores in such U.S. border centres as Buffalo, N.Y., Detroit, Minneapolis, Minn., and Seattle, Wash., usually grant only 3 to 3 1/2 per cent.

Barbados Chief Asks Canada Aid In Federation

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP)—Sir Grantley Adams, premier of Barbados, said today he is convinced the future of the new West Indies Federation depends on the closeness of its relationship with Canada.

Sir Grantley told the Mount Allison University Summer Institute here that while the West Indies' way of life is British even to "religion and cricket" and the federation expects extensive trade with the United States, its success or failure may depend on the degree of understanding achieved with Canada.

The British Caribbean colonies of Antigua, Barbados, Dominica, Grenada, Jamaica, Montserrat, Windward Islands, Leeward Islands, Trinidad and Tobago plan to merge early in 1958. The first federal election is scheduled for March.

Sir Grantley said there are some aspects of confederation with which he is "not too pleased" but the British West Indies, to be known after federation as the West Indies, has profited by the mistakes of earlier federations.

He said provision has been made in the constitution for its revision after the first five years when new clauses may be added and ineffectual ones deleted. All the island colonies had "right wing socialist" governments and that was likely to be the complexion of the first federal government.

Premier Hugh John Fleming of New Brunswick said Canada's experience "may have been satisfactory but the experience of some parts of Canada can be considered far from satisfactory."

He said the central government should be "willing at all times to contribute to the welfare of the units within the federation."

Daring Rescue Made By Copter On Mountainside

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UP)—A civilian test pilot made a daring landing on a mountain ledge with one of the world's largest helicopters Wednesday and rescued an injured Boy Scout.

Donald Clark, the pilot, plucked Boy Scout Dee Orr Kunz, 16, of Evanston, Wyo., from the rocky ledge at the 10,400-foot level and flew him here for treatment of his injuries.

Clark made the mercy mission in a huge Sikorsky H-37, one of only five flying models of the largest operating helicopters in the world. Three other persons accompanied him.

Kunz, who fell 14 feet from a tree on Wednesday while trying to flush a porcupine to be used in a "survival demonstration," was reported today in critical condition, "but out of danger."

LUCKY CHANCE

Young Kunz' Scout leader, Victor Gras of Rock Springs, walked 20 miles to his car and drove 90 miles more to summon aid. Actually, the assistance of the helicopter was a stroke of luck. It had been flown from Fort Trucker, Ala., to Fort Carson, Colo., for high-altitude testing operations, and was available for the rescue.

DUKE TAKES 'SHINE' TO YACHT BOOM

COWES, Isle of Wight (UP)—The Duke of Edinburgh sported a black eye today but no one seemed to know where he got it.

The black eye was hidden by dark glasses, but yachtsmen who talked with the duke said there were two marked bruises under his right eyelid which could be seen clearly when he removed the glasses.

No official reason was given for the shiner, but a member of the Royal yacht staff said, "I expect the Prince caught his eye on the boom or on a rope while sailing."

Record Total Vote In General Election

OTTAWA (CP)—A record 6,608,482 Canadians voted in the federal election June 10, chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay announced today in a preliminary statement.

This compared with the previous record vote of 5,640,256 in 1953. Between 8,900,000 and 9,000,000 persons out of 16,500,000 were eligible to vote.

The Progressive Conservative party, which formed the government, received 216,113 fewer votes than the Liberals.

Totals by parties: Liberal, including independent Liberals, 2,796,764; Progressive Conservative, including independent Progressive Conservative, 2,580,051; CCF, 707,833; Social Credit, including independent Social Credit, 437,190; Labor Progressive Communist, 7,772; others, 79,472.

Veterans of Unique Army Unit Gather in Ottawa for Reunion

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans from a unique Canadian-United States fighting team gather here today to renew comradeships formed in three years of serving together in some of the Second World War's toughest battles.

About 120 former members of the 1st Special Service Force will hold the 11th annual reunion of their association. Here as guests are wives and parents of some of the force's men who were killed in action.

The force, now disbanded, was formed in 1942 as the result of planning by the late U.S. president Roosevelt and prime minister Churchill.

It was trained as a highly specialized airborne unit with Canada supplying some 700 officers and men—about one-third of its strength. The rest were Americans.

NEW HONORS

On the eve of the convention, Canadian Army headquarters announced the award of nine battle honors to the 1st Canadian Special Service Battalion.

Two of the honors commemorate the fact that the battalion was the only Canadian unit to fight on the bloody bridgehead at Anzio, Italy, and to take part in the American invasion of the south coast of France.

The Canadian battalion suffered 776 casualties, including 13 officers and 137 other ranks killed in action.

Dullness was due to traders awaiting reports by the Canadian and U.S. governments on the crop and grain situation. Flax trade was light, prices irregular. Commercial demand was limited to domestic orders in oats and barley. Some selling in oats was attributed to U.S. interest.

A small lot of barley was reported sold to the U.S. There was a mixed trade in rye.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included Belgium 115,000 bushels, Japan 110,000 and The Netherlands 75,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, TWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged with the exception of No. 6 wheat, down one cent from Thursday.

Chicago (AP)—Some professional trade liquidation in advance of the government's crop forecast pushed soybean futures down more than three cents at times today on the board of trade.

Wheat and rye also were down around a cent or more in some cases, while corn and oats dipped minor fractions.

Trade was dull as the government report, to be issued after the close of trading, was awaited with some anxiety.

There was little doing in other pits, except some hedging.

AT VANCOUVER prices were lower on a dull market. Trojan sold 7,000 at $3.10. Vantor moved 10,700 at $2.10. Peace River Pete traded 3,900 at $1.55.

MONTE ROBERTS

People are forever telling me I should have my head read, and I am inclined to agree with them.

In fact, there is nothing I would like better than to have my head read.

The trouble is, to have my head read by a qualified psychoanalyst, a drastic change in said head would be necessary.

As I understand it, psychoanalysts dearly love to hear about a patient's dreams, and by analyzing these dreams, the psychoanalysts are able to read the patient's head.

Well, my trouble is, I cannot remember my dreams.

Other people can remember dreams, why can't I?

Other people come up to me and they say: "I had the strangest dream last night."

Clutching me by the buttonhole so there is no chance of escape, they proceed to describe the dream in detail: "There I was walking down St. Patrick's Street, in the 1200 block, no, it was the 1300 block, and I had nothing on but a pair of pearl grey spats and black suede shoes, size 10 double A, and a pair of maroon swim trunks with a gold stripe down the sides.

"Well, sir, what did I see coming toward me down the street—this was in my dream, mind you—but a cream colored convertible, 275-horsepower, torsion bar suspension, red leather upholstery, and a blonde (40, 18, 35) with blue eyes, sitting in the back seat, but nobody driving.

"Wasn't that strange?" these people who remember their dreams ask me.

"What was the licence number of the car?" I ask them, hoping to cause confusion. But right back comes the answer: "California plates, black on yellow, XTB 9846. Why?"

Well, the type of people described above are ideal patients for psychoanalysts.

But as for me, all I can remember about a dream is that I had a dream, and sometimes not even that.

Occasionally, however, I can remember thinking to myself (while the dream was going on) that this is a most interesting dream, and that I must make a point to remember it in detail.

And when I wake up in the morning, can I remember this interesting dream?

No.

In fact, some dreams are so intriguing (at the time they are being dreamed) that I am convinced they will make good column material.

But when I wake up in the morning, can I remember this dream, this dream which would make good column material?

No.

Which PROVES I should have my head read.

PUNGENT 'PUNDITS'

Child Critic Finds Book 'Too Childish'

By DINAH KERR

Some "pungent" observations on children's books have come from the stumpy pencils of youngsters who attended three reading clubs at Victoria Public Library this summer.

The clubs, headed by children's librarian Mrs. Isabelle Goodwin, met once a week for six weeks, and at each session the children had to submit "reviews" of the books they had read.

Two of Mrs. Goodwin's favorite "critics" are Jindy-Johl, a young Hindu lad, and Carolyn Grace Heal, both members of the "Swiftsure Adventurers" Club for grades four to six.

JUST LIKE FILM

One of Jindy's pet books was "Molly and Michael."

"I liked it because it's just like the film of Leshahn," he reported. "I liked the film of Leshahn."

He also liked "The Tale of Mr. Fox" because "it's just like the story of old granny fox, the book I read two months ago."

Then there's "Babs of the Foothills." Jindy really fell for this one.

"It's interesting and not only that in the first chapter, I think it was, Babs found a dead fish by the river."

HAPPY ENDINGS

"A Hat for Amy Jean" pleased him, too.

"I like stories with happy endings," Jindy pencilled in a quavering script. "I like this book because I like birthdays too."

Jindy also fell for the religious books, particularly "The Boy and Girl Who Knew Jesus."

"If there was no such person as Jesus," he observed, "there would not be a world, no food, no people or water..."

Carolyn liked most of the books she read, but she had a sharp word for "The Penguin Goes Home."

TOO CHILDISH

"I'm very sorry to say I don't like this book because it's silly. I feel it's too childish for a pupil in grade six."

"The Girl in the White Amor" (her spelling) was more Carolyn's style. "It tells of how Joan of Ark went to war against the English," she wrote. "I am glad she was such a brave girl."

Carolyn satisfied her scientific bent with "All About Volcanoes and Earthquakes." She says "it tells about the warnings of the volcanoes. There are also stories of how many people died in volcanoes."

HELP AT SCHOOL

In a thoughtful postscript Carolyn added, "This may help me in science at school."

On "Nickels and Dimes," she recounts "It tells how Frank Woolworth started a store from almost nothing. He afterwards had stores all over. In Pennsylvania, Harrisburg and Brooklyn and more places."

LUNCH HOUR CLOSING EXTENDED TO B.C. MUSEUM, ARCHIVES

The government has tightened up its lunch-hour office closing order to include the Provincial Museum, library and archives.

Along with almost all government offices, they now will be closed from 12 noon until 1:10 p.m. daily.

When the general order came out two weeks ago, it was announced they would remain open to visitors, but no staff would be on duty except an attendant.

The "closed for lunch" signs have been popping up on government office doors this week, and it is understood Premier Bennett intends to make the closure as complete as possible.

The order-in-council setting up the uniform lunch period for civil servants left a loophole for department heads by stating "necessary services" could be maintained.

Some are being told now their services are not as essential as they had thought.

'Wonder Ships' In First Meeting

The two newest additions to the RCN's Second Canadian Escort Squadron met at Esquimalt harbor today, for the first time as commissioned ships.

HMCS Skeena, returning from a two-month cadet training cruise, eased into berth outside of HMCS Fraser at HMC Dockyard's Jetty A — quietly marking another milestone in the modernized strength of Canada's navy.

The Skeena and Fraser are both $23,000,000 wonder ships, packed from fantail to forepeak with electronic gear, mounting the most destructive anti-submarine weapons yet devised.

STILL PROUD

Berthed ahead of the new ships are two of the destroyer escorts now being outmoded — but still proud, sleek, and effective in their jobs. They are the Tribal class destroyers Cayuga and Athabaskan — both "senior" to Skeena and Fraser in the squadron.

The two tribals and the Skeena returned at 10 a.m. today in company with the training cruiser HMCS Ontario, whose commanding officer, Capt. Robert Welland, was senior officer for the cruise to California and Hawaiian points.

PROMOTION

Cadets embarked for the cruise are enrolled in the regular officer training plan. In addition to cadet training, the cruise offered opportunity for regular navy men to advance their ratings.

The voyage just ended is Capt. Welland's last in the Ontario, and likely his last sea-going command for some time. He has been posted as commanding officer of HMCS Shearwater, the navy's air-training establishment near Dartmouth, N.S.

The cruiser will go into annual re-fit shortly, which will last into December, and her next cruise is expected in January.

30 Young Swimmers Ready For Beaver-Elk Lake Race

Thirty youngsters have registered already for the third annual Beaver-Elk Lake distance swim Labor Day.

Closing date for entries is next Thursday, Aug. 15. Both boys and girls, 11 to 19, may get entry forms at Beaver Lake's lakeside tearoom or by mail.

Ninety young swimmers covered the two-mile course from Happyland to Beaver Lake beach last year.

Practice swims are being carried out Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7 p.m.

KEEP GOV'T OFFICES ON V.I. CHAMBERS TO TELL PREMIER

The Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island will meet Premier Bennett and his cabinet Aug. 20 to discuss Vancouver Island improvements.

A brief to be submitted by the delegation will deal with rural planning, conservation, power resources, development of a parks system on the island and keeping government establishments in Victoria.

"We are most anxious that government establishments shall not be moved to the mainland," Arnold W. Webb, secretary of the Associated Chambers, said today.

Frenchman Picks Tuesday For Juan de Fuca Attempt

Jacques Amyot, 32-year-old swimmer from Quebec city, Tuesday will make the 46th solo attempt on the Strait of Juan de Fuca and the ninth from the Port Angeles shore.

Raymond Roy, his trainer, said today Tuesday had been chosen because of lower tides.

Amyot and his trainer expect to hire a boat today. After studying tide time-tables on the American side, they decided to cross the strait by boat early Tuesday morning and begin the attempt about 6 a.m.

"Jacques has found the water very cold in his training River."

Lumber Slump Hurt PGE, Says Premier

A drop in rail shipments on the PGE this summer is symptomatic of a nation-wide decline, Premier Bennett said Thursday.

"It's amazing the way the PGE has been able to keep doing the business it has," the premier said.

If the lumber business had been buoyant, the railroad's revenue would have been up, he said.

Mr. Bennett said he will make an inspection trip up the PGE to Prince George in the last week of August.

The premier will leave Vancouver on Sunday, Aug. 25 with the PGE board directors, who will meet on the train.

Mr. Bennett also disclosed that he will take a vacation next week.

He plans to take part in the three bye-election campaigns in the two weeks before voting day Sept. 9 in Burnaby, Delta and Cariboo.

IN THROES OF NEW NOVEL based on "ticklish Arab situation in Near East" is well-known Victoria author Mrs. Agnes Newton Keith, here on two-month holiday from Tripoli, Libya. She's been there two years with hubby, an agriculturalist with the UN's food and agricultural organization. They return next month "and it will take me to the year's end to complete my book," said the author, who wrote best-sellers "Three Came Home" and "White Man Returns."

SLOW MARKET FOR GOOD BIKES was reported today by Bob Foote, 16, of 1454 Edgeware. "Since Monday he's been trying to market the bike on the Hillside thoroughfare for his friend Victor Kennedy, 15, of 1362 Hillside, who wants to buy a spinning rod and reel. Bob's had several offers for the CCM, but nobody will meet the asking price of $15. Vic will sell him off later, but in the meantime Bob is just sitting and eating. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

Blood Duel Challenge Issued

Vancouver, New Westminster Prodded by Mayor Scurrah

Mayor Percy Scurrah today challenged New Westminster and Vancouver to a "blood duel."

"Let's see whether they can beat Victoria in a contest to answer the current shortage of stored blood," the mayor stated.

Contest winner would be the city which provides the most blood donors per thousand population.

Special clinics are being held in the three cities next week to relieve a province-wide shortage which top officials have described as "critical."

SPECIAL TAGS

Victoria's clinic, to be held at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, Tuesday and Wednesday is sponsored by the mayor as a "Mayor's Drive." Donors will be given a special tag to be worn as a badge of honor during the two-day drive.

Provincial Red Cross Transfusion Service chairman, Mrs. J. N. Mawer, announced the mainland clinics and appealed for donors.

SURGERY DELAYED

Lack of stored blood has already caused postponement of 30 operations at Vancouver's General and St. Paul's Hospitals. At Royal Jubilee in Victoria, only emergency surgery is being undertaken.

Vancouver Mayor Fred Hume has promised a personal investigation of the situation. It was not known at press time whether he and the mayor of New Westminster would accept Mayor Scurrah's challenge.

Areas surrounding the metropolitan areas are expected to give support to the three emergency clinics.

Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich, Reeve Fred Norris of Oak Bay and Reeve Alfred C. Wurtele of Esquimalt each called on residents of those areas to support the mayor's drive.

SWEET LEILANI CHAMBER CROONS

The Chamber of Commerce reported today it had been assured by the owners that Se. Leilani, Hawaiian cruise ship, would call at Victoria Jan. 18.

Previously the sailing had been canceled in favor of a call at Vancouver, but the Chamber wrote the owners pressing the case for a stop-over here, and Thursday received a favorable reply.

Local travel agents are waiting for, but have not yet received, official confirmation of the Victoria stopover.

Hikers' Trail Asked For Centennial Year

A 30-mile hikers' and campers' trail, through one of Vancouver Island's most beautiful alpine areas, is proposed as a centennial project by Victoria outdoor men and mountaineers.

The project, to be submitted to the B.C. Centennial Committee, calls for the construction of a scenic trail from Great Central Lake to Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park, with shelters for campers.

The proposed trail takes in Della Falls, the highest in Canada which spills over a 1,500 foot precipice, milky-blue Beauty Lake, Cream Lake and Della Lake.

It also skirts two spectacular peaks, Big Interior Mountain and Mount Septimus, each over 6,000 feet, and passes over Flower Ridge, an alpine plateau covered in summer with masses of alpine blooms and shrubs.

"The area is comparable to the Rockies," said Ted Fairhurst, past president of the Victoria Outdoor Club. "There are snow-covered peaks, glaciers, chasms and attractive lakes."

The project, proposed by the Outdoor Club and the Victoria branch of the Alpine Club of Canada, is supported by all outdoor groups on Vancouver Island, he said.

A brief on the project is being prepared by Noel Lax, chairman of the local Alpine Club and Sid Watt, outgoing committee chairman of the Outdoor Club. The two men headed a party over the proposed trail in July.

The plan calls for the construction of two shelters along the trail.

Members of the clubs are prepared to construct the shelters if the provincial government will supply the lumber and materials. These would be dropped on the site by a helicopter next summer when the alpine heights are clear of snow.

The route of the trail would start from Great Central Lake and would follow Drinkwater Creek to Della Falls. From there it would turn eastward passing a few lakes and gradually rising to "Flower Ridge," which leads to Buttle Lake.

The spectacular ridge is 4,000 feet in height and several miles long. It provides the hiker with one of the most beautiful views of Vancouver Island.

Campers or hikers would have to go by boat to the start of the trail from Great Central Lake or Buttle Lake. There is a ferry service to the head of Central Lake at present.

Victoria outdoor men said the area is ideal for fishermen, alpine climbers and campers who seek the open spaces and are not satisfied with the roadside parks of the provincial government. It would also prove a big attraction for the more adventurous U.S. campers and fishermen, they said.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Inscription for silver tray: Some friends of ours are about to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary. We have selected a small silver tray for them with a blank space in the centre which will accommodate only a small inscription. Should it be marked "The Brown's 25th" or "The Browns' 25th"? Possibly you can suggest a better phrase to fit the small space.

Louise Davis answers: If your heart is set on an engraving to give the tray that personal touch, I am in favor of having just the initial "B" inscribed in that small space. Your suggestion sounds a little too "trophy-like" for such an occasion, and I am afraid it might spoil the beauty of the tray by throwing the design out of balance. If you are anxious or determined to have some inscription to commemorate the event, perhaps you can have the lettering done on the back, such as "To George and Edna Brown on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary." If the cost is too prohibitive or if there isn't enough space, you can have the inscription read "September 10th, 1957." It would be just as proper to give your friends the tray without any monogram or lettering at all.

Plums A-Plenty on Market; Pickling Supplies Here

By PENNY SAVER

Plums are at their best now and you'll likely be taking home a big bag of them with your weekend shopping. I found some with names I've never heard of—cherry peach plums, for instance. These are tiny ones and you can buy three pounds for 25 cents.

The more familiar varieties include California prunes at 20 cents a pound, and golden eggs at 25 cents.

It's the peak of the apricot season—they'll be finishing up in the next week or so. At the moment, you can buy two pounds for 29 cents, and cases range from $1.59 up.

I saw big, juicy-looking peaches at 29 cents for five, but your family is hoping for peach shortcake or pie this weekend.

Nectarines—the fruit half-way between a peach and a plum—are two for 29 cents, which seems expensive to me, but you might like to try a few just for the novelty.

Bartlett pears have just appeared on the market, and you'll find them variously priced—I saw some at four pounds for 25 cents and others at 25 cents for three pears.

There are a few more varieties of apples available now, besides the Transparents at two pounds for 25 cents. There are Melbas at 29 cents for two pounds, and Gravensteins, imported from the States, at 39 cents for half a dozen, which is certainly dear enough.

Now's the time to start doing up pickles for next winter's eating. Pickling supplies were just being uncrated in one store, and they'll be on the market for the weekend.

TODAY'S RECIPE

FRESH PEACH ROLL

Biscuit dough, 2 cups sliced peaches, ½ cup granulated sugar, ½ cup light brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon butter, juice and grated rind 1 lemon, 1 cup boiling water.

Make favorite biscuit dough using 2 cups flour or packaged mix. Roll ¼-inch thick; cover with peaches. Roll up like jelly roll, press edges together, cut in 2-inch slices. Place in greased 8-inch square pan. Combine remaining ingredients, cook gently until slightly thickened. Pour over slices in pan. Bake in 425°F. oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

For a spectacular party dessert, start with two layers of chocolate cake made from a mix. Cool and split layers in half. Put the four thin layers together with sweetened whipped cream. Frost top and sides of cake with a rich chocolate frosting and cover generously with finely chopped walnuts.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

(The Friday Question Box)

Q. "I am 12 years old, and my problem is that I have a lot of dark and long hairs on my legs. Because of this I dread wearing shorts. My mother and I think that I am too young to shave my legs or use one of the hair removing lotions. Could you tell me how to hide the ugly hairs with a leg make-up?"

A. The chances are that the hair on your legs will decrease as you grow a little older. However, I disagree with you and your mother. If this is making you self-conscious and unhappy there is no reason in the world why you should not remove it.

If a young girl is self-conscious about this or any handicap, her personality is likely to be injured. It has happened many times.

Q. "What exercise would help eliminate weight on the stomach? I have a roll there which increases with the years and would like to correct this before it is too late. I have tried waist exercises but this doesn't seem to help."

A. The waist and abdominal exercises are quite different. As a general rule the waist exercises are of the bending type while the most effective abdominal exercises are taken lying on the floor on one's back. Here is a good one: Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor at your sides. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen. Straighten the legs toward the ceiling. Slowly lower legs to floor (with stiff knees). Continue.

Q. "I have a wart on one of my fingers. How can I remove it?"

A. Do not try to remove it yourself. A skin specialist can do it very easily.

Q. "I am 16 years old, 5 feet 6 inches and weigh 90 pounds. My bust measures 31 inches, waist 22½ and hips 32. I know I should gain some but how much and where?"

A. You really are quite underweight. You should weigh around 125 pounds. I strongly urge you to have a physical check-up and gain weight under a doctor's supervision. Your measurements are in good ratio. You just need to gain all over.

Carmen in Setting of Old Roman Baths; The Catacombs

By Stella Gummow

Rome, Italy.

"Carmen in the open, in a setting of the old Roman baths with great stone pillars forming the stage, will always be an outstanding memory of this world trip."

"There were more than 9,000 people there. A magnificent cast with Barbieri in the title role was another facet in this priceless experience."

"We had a wonderful flight from Beirut over the Isles of Greece with a brief touch-down at Athens in the late afternoon sun."

"Rome was a city of twinkling lights of many colors as we circled to land. The new and modern hotel in which we are housed has only been open a month."

"Yesterday morning we visited FAO, heard of what is being done in rural welfare by the staff in the Canada Room and had lunch there with Miss Margaret Hocking, as hostess."

"Our tour guide has taken us all around Rome, to the Vatican and St. Peter's Church, the Pantheon, and he even warbled 'Three Coins in a Fountain' when he took us to the famed one where we stopped for pictures and to toss our coins."

"Our trip through the catacombs was almost too realistic for we lost our guide and got into a pitch dark alley. We stayed there, like lost sheep, until he found us and led us safely through."

Way of Early Christians Hard

"These catacombs had a special meaning for us, so newly come from the Holy Land, and we could picture the perilous living of the early Christians and, in the Coliseum, could imagine, all too well, the throwing of the Christians to the lions."

"In Rome it appears that something has to be at least 1,000 years old before it is important. Our guide was even apologetic about the memorial to King Victor Emmanuel, known to Canadians and Americans of the Second World War as the 'wedding cake' as he said it was 'only 50 years old.'"

"The ruins of the old Roman walls and the old race courses for the chariots are all here in their entirety."

"We have seen the little platform where Mussolini gave his fiery speeches."

"Rome is swarming with tourists so we have found many interesting English speaking people along our way."

From Tucson

Mrs. S. Speese with her daughter Leah has come from Tucson, Ariz., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Len Woodhouse, at their home on Uplands Road. They will be here for the next two weeks.

Holiday in Mexico

Miss Dorothy Brooks, 1352 St. Patrick Street, will arrive home Sunday after holidaying in Montreal and Mexico City. She flew to Montreal to spend ten days, then to Mexico for a week.

Yank at Red Youth Show To Defect, Report Says

MOSCOW (AP)—At least one American in Moscow for the youth festival appears to be on the verge of defecting to the Soviet Union, an authoritative source said today.
Two other American delegates to the Communist-sponsored festival have said they may stay for "study" when the festival ends Sunday.
The names were not immediately divulged. However, the oldest of the three has not been seen in the American delegation hotel at the Moscow agricultural exhibition for more than two days.
Several of his friends, each of whom has expressed extreme left-wing views since arriving two weeks ago, said:
"He is in an infirmary and ill with grippe."
"No one can see him."
About 40 American delegates to the festival meanwhile have accepted an invitation to visit Red China despite a United States state department ban on travel there, a delegation spokesman said.
Fifteen Americans, including eight members of the group's administrative committee will make the three-week trip as non-paying guests of the Peiping government.
The others will be asked to pay a token $100 each for transportation to and from China and for all expenses of their tour. They are expected to leave shortly after the windup of the Moscow festival.

The American embassy here had no immediate comment on the expedition.

Canadian Movie Pioneer Dies

TORONTO (CP)—George Thorne Booth, English-born Canadian painter and motion picture pioneer, died Thursday at his summer home in Bracebridge 125 miles north of Toronto.
Mr. Booth, a member of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, organized and directed one of the first all-Canadian film companies, the Ontario Film Company, later called the Booth Film Company.

1,000 Deathless Traffic Days Equals Record for Alberta City

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—Medicine Hat today became the second Western Canadian city of more than 20,000 to go through 1,000 days without a traffic fatality. The 1,000-day mark was passed at midnight Thursday.

Prince Albert, Sask., with a population of 20,172, passed the 1,000-day mark Aug. 5, having recorded its last traffic fatality Nov. 8, 1954.

Officials of both cities attributed their fine records to increased traffic patrol activity and to the co-operation of citizens and drivers.

Medicine Hat, whose population is 20,757, had its last traffic fatality Nov. 12, 1954. Civic officials set Nov. 12 of this year as their next objective. They say, with a little extra care and help from the drivers, a three-year mark could be achieved.

Messages congratulating Medicine Hat have arrived from all parts of Canada and the United States. Congratulations were received from President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Premier Manning and others.

Prince Albert police officials said efforts were increased in that city in the last year to reduce the number of speeders by the introduction of speed traps and the increase in traffic patrols.

More and better traffic signs have been put up in both cities, and a safety-check lane for automobiles and an annual road test for teen-age drivers were set up in Prince Albert.

Medicine Hat police officials set up a traffic department in the last year to deal solely with traffic problems and city businessmen formed the Medicine Hat Safety Council.

Stop lights at downtown intersections, blinker lights on major highways into the city and yield-right-of-way signs at blind corners were among the safety precautions recommended by the council to be installed.

Three signs were also put up on the city's outskirts to remind visitors of the city's fatality-free record.

BRITONS CLAIM 'FLU VACCINE

LONDON (Reuters)—Scientists claimed today they have developed a vaccine which they hope will overcome Asian flu.

Dr. F. Himmelweit, director of the virus research department at the Wright-Fleming Institute of Microbiology, said successful tests are carried out on 120 volunteer servicemen.

"We are producing the vaccine and we hope that first supplies will be on sale within a month," he said.

WOMEN'S HIGH HEELS GIVE A LIFT TO SOUL

LONDON (Reuters)—A British doctor has stepped right out in defence of women's high heels—producing medical, psychological and social arguments to support his view.

"Do not let us think that anything we can say or do will distract our ladies from reigning fashion, so let us encourage them and enjoy it," Dr. Owen McDonagh says in a letter to the British Medical Journal.

Psychologically, they give the impression of long legs and a sensation of slowness.

Rebels Repel Oman Troops

KERSHA VILLAGE, Oman (Reuters)—British-led loyalist troops, advancing against rebel tribesmen in Oman, have withdrawn after meeting unexpectedly strong opposition at Firg, six miles from the rebel stronghold of Nizwa.

The opposition at Firg was estimated at 200 trained men led by Talib bin Ali, brother of the rebellious Imam of Oman.

Earlier today, a British army spokesman at Manama, Bahrain, said the British-backed forces had met resistance at Firg, but were going forward today to discover the strength and location of the opposition.

DASH ACROSS DESERT

The 700-strong mechanized column dashed across the desert to the vicinity of that strongpoint Thursday afternoon.

Today it rested around fresh water wells outside this village, about 11 miles south of its ultimate objective, the great round fort at Nizwa.

Meanwhile, the column's commander, Brig. J. A. R. Robertson, flew to Bahrain to consult with the British political resident there about future strategy concerning Firg.

The rebels' resistance came from well-concealed sniping positions inside the narrow alleys. But the Sultan's British-offi-

RUSSIA SHIPS ARMS, PLANES INTO YEMEN

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is aware that there have been six—possibly seven—shipments of Soviet arms to the Arab Red Sea Kingdom of Yemen, a foreign office spokesman said today.

He told his daily press conference that he understands these shipments included a number of planes. There were also about 50 Soviet instructors or technicians in Yemen.

He said he could confirm that these supplies are being delivered and "I think the supply started about the beginning of the year."

Thousands Flee New Hurricane

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—A gulf hurricane packing winds up to 90 miles an hour bore down on the Louisiana-Texas coast today. Thousands of persons fled inland to avoid a repetition of the Hurricane Audrey disaster.

Rising tides along the same stretch of coastline that was battered mercilessly in June heralded the approach of the new hurricane, nick-named Bertha. Hurricane-force winds were reported unofficially about 55 miles south of the Louisiana shoreline shortly before 2 p.m. EDT (11 a.m. PDT).

Residents who only recently moved back into such stricken areas as Cameron and Pecan Island, La., left their homes for inland cities. The Red Cross opened refugee centres in Lake Charles and other South Louisiana cities.

Cameron, site of some 500 deaths in the Audrey disaster, only last week began an ambitious rebuilding program. It was abruptly halted today.

Offshore oil drilling companies removed all their oil rigs—some 3,000 men—Thursday night, and today were sending their floating equipment inland.

Oil companies with equipment off the Louisiana coast reported their rigs "holding up pretty well" in seas churning with 15 to 20 foot waves.

The weather bureau's advisory at noon EDT located the hurricane, travelling roughly in the same path as its killer predecessor Audrey six weeks ago, about 140 miles southeast of Lake Charles, La.

G. L. Allen, a forecaster at the New Orleans weather bureau, said that movement would likely take it inland somewhere between the Louisiana-Texas border and a point south of Houston, Tex.

Movie Stars Must Testify Judge Rules

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—A shouting argument between attorneys enlivened unsuccessful attempts to prevent actor Tab Hunter from testifying in the trial of Confidential magazine about allegedly spying on in Hollywood.

Superior Judge Herbert V. Walker rejected the plea of Hunter's attorney, Gilbert D. Seton, to bar the actor's testimony from the trial.

But before he ruled, Seton and the Chief defence counsel for Confidential's agents, Arthur Crowley, squared off in a chest-to-chest argument that looked like Leo Durocher disputing a strike call with the umpire.

Polish Subs Spotted Off Coast of Britain

WHAT'S BIRD IN HAND WORTH?

"Honey" the hummingbird is feeling pretty sassy today. But Tuesday, all alone in the back garden at the home of Mrs. Eric Badminton, 2560 Penrhyn, "Honey" was humming mighty low. He'd lost his way home and was sitting forlornly in the grass, when Mrs. Badminton found him. Now he's eating honey and hopping about happily all day. "I'll let him go when he can fly," Mrs. Badminton said. She thinks the baby bird tumbled from his nest.

Maybe Seeking Haven From Reds

(From Times News Services)

LONDON—With the Royal Navy watching curiously, two Polish submarines cruised slowly and mysteriously southward today along the North Sea coast of Scotland.

Diplomats in London speculated that the crews might be looking for a place to land to ask asylum from the Communist regime in Warsaw. The Royal Navy said they would get the usual treatment for visiting warships should they land.

The subs were first spotted off Aberdeen on the northeast coast of Scotland. Soon after daybreak a spokesman at Rosyth naval headquarters said the vessels were about 30 miles off the entrance to the Firth of Forth.

"They are just going quietly along," he said. "We don't know where they are bound for and we have not been in communication with them."

"If they should come into a British port they will be granted facilities normally accorded to visiting warships," the spokesman said.

A Western diplomat in London who declined use of his name raised the possibility that the crews might seek political asylum. He was the first to report that the navy had spotted the subs.

AERIAL CHECK
It was assumed that they had been identified as Polish by aerial reconnaissance, since there was no communication with them. Two British destroyers were reported following them.

The Polish Navy is known to have only four submarines—all pre-war—although Russia may have transferred modern ones to her ally.

In 1954 the crew of the Polish trawler Puszczyk overpowered the vessel's captain and political commissar and sought refuge at the port of Whitby.

Veteran coastguardsmen and fishermen on the rugged coast of Scotland said it had been "years and years" since any foreign submarines had been reported in the area in peacetime.

They noted that the base at Rosyth was home to British submarines and it would be highly unusual for foreign submarines to enter the area.

Bail Refused For Russian Master Spy

NEW YORK (AP)—Accused master Russian spy Rudolph Ivanovich Abel was arraigned in Brooklyn federal court today on charges which could bring his execution. A plea of not guilty was entered for him by the court. Abel was held without bail when arraigned before Judge Matthew T. Abruzzo.

The judge inquired whether Abel had obtained a lawyer and Abel said he had not. Asked how long it would take him to get one, Abel replied:

"I really don't know."

Abel said he would like to be given time to obtain a lawyer before further proceedings and the judge complied. The judge then set a hearing in the case for Aug. 13.

MAY BE COLONEL
Abel, alleged to be a colonel of the Soviet secret police, was indicted by a Brooklyn grand jury on charges that he headed a Russian spy ring sending U.S. military and atomic secrets to his homeland.

The 55-year-old prisoner appeared in unpressed clothes for his arraignment. He was baggy-eyed and spoke in soft tones, with a rather deep voice and a trace of a foreign accent.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William F. Tompkins described Abel as the head of "of a most elaborate and intricate espionage ring."

He said that Abel was "skillfully trained in the practice of espionage, skillfully trained in the art of avoiding detection and skilled in the use of aliases."

Tompkins opposed granting bail for the defendant, saying Abel was a national of the Soviet Union, had entered the United States from Canada illegally, concealed his presence here and "illegally obtained" secret information relating to U.S. national defense.

Spies Jailed For 5½ Years

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacob Albam, 64, a former Brooklyn tea and spice dealer and Mrs. Myra Sobie, 52, were sentenced to 5½ years in prison each today for spying for Russia.

Her husband, Jack, 54, a third member of the espionage ring, was to be sentenced later. He was not in court.

All three pleaded guilty. Both Albam and Mrs. Sobie appeared shocked when Judge Richard H. Levett pronounced sentence.

Throughout the preliminaries, the blonde Mrs. Sobie wept softly.

B.C. Job Picture 'Not Calamitous'

The unemployment picture in British Columbia while somewhat gloomier than last year, is "certainly not calamitous," the province's top employment officer said today.

William Horrobin, regional employment officer at the Vancouver office, told The Times he was concerned about "scarce headlines."

"While there is a considerably larger number of unemployed than a year ago, the problem is not drastic."

Some people are "crying blue ruin before it is upon us," he said.

At the same time, Mr. Hor-

robin said he could not be "too optimistic" about the situation this winter.

Employment had not picked up as expected following settlement of a number of industrial disputes, particularly in the coast logging industry, earlier this summer.

As a result the number of persons registered at unemployment offices throughout the province is greater than at the same time last summer.

In Vancouver, there were 16,000 unemployed persons in July, compared with about 11,000 in the same month last year.

LABOR FORCE UP

During the year, however, there has been an increase of between 20,000 and 30,000 persons employed in B.C., with the total labor force in the province now about 505,000.

"When there is growth and expansion in all sectors of the economy it is natural that there should be an increase in unemployment figures," Mr. Horrobin said.

"We're still having growing pains in B.C.," he said.

An "unusually fast" increase of 89,000 in population of the province during the past year is also a factor to consider, Mr. Horrobin said.

Immigration and natural population growth have accentuated the unemployment problem.

"The picture is not as bright as last year," Mr. Horrobin concluded, "but it is not yet alarming."

In the Greater Victoria area, unemployment decreased by about 54 during the past week, the National Employment Office reported.

But there are still approximately 500 more unemployed than this time last year, partly attributable to an increase of several thousand in Victoria's population, including about 1,500 immigrants coming here.

Registered unemployed this week numbered 2,319 consisting of 1,662 males and 657 females. Last week the figure was 2,373 unemployed—1,707 males and 666 females.

'INDICATION' OF OUR TIMES' SAYS CHIEF

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chief Constable George Archer says there has been a marked increase this year in attacks on policemen and called it "an indication of our times."

"There continues to be a willingness in some quarters to decide differences with the police by violence," he told the Police Commission Thursday.

Atom War Thriller In Weekend Saturday

The gripping and grim story of what could happen in a sudden nuclear war begins in Weekend Magazine in the Times on Saturday.

It is a condensation of the new novel "On the Beach" by the famous writer Nevil Shute. His tale is based on the premise that the nations of the northern hemisphere have hurled all their A-bombs and H-bombs at each other and destroyed themselves.

As the deadly radio-active clouds resulting from the bombs begin to circle the earth the people of the southern hemisphere await the doom that is certain to come to them.

Mr. Shute has woven this into what he calls "a novel that could happen." The condensation will appear in Weekend for the next four Saturdays.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Almighty God, who has called us to be followers of Thy Son, we confess before Thee our weakness and failure. We need a strength we do not find in ourselves. We need a courage greater than we possess. Make us graver, stronger, steadfast, and true. As men and women see us from day to day, may they take knowledge of us that we have been with Christ. In His name we pray. Amen.

U.S. 'Puzzled' by Attack On Queen Says Archbishop

LONDON (UP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury predicted today that recent criticisms of the Queen's public speaking would "not in the least" affect her forthcoming visit to North America.

U.S. reaction to the article by Lord Altrincham who said her speeches made the Queen sound like a "priggish school girl" was one of "puzzlement," the archbishop said on his return from a trip to New Haven, Conn., where he attended the World Council of Churches.

He said he had nothing to add to his statement in New Haven two days ago that the criticism by the peer who was smacked in the face by an indignant Briton "lacked wisdom."

Americans, he said, were asking "What is all this about?" He said he stood by his statement in America when he said "her subjects feel that the Queen fulfills their highest ideals in her combination of proper formality and restraint and full, intelligent and happy relations with her subjects."

The archbishop said the criticisms would soon be forgotten. Meanwhile, the Daily Express today came out with the headline "It's that Peer Again" in reporting Altrincham's new conclusions on television Thursday night.

Among other things, the young peer said Prince Charles should be sent to a public school instead of the exclusive institution he now attends.

He also said the Queen takes too many holidays.

The News Chronicle reported the program with the headline "Altrincham Again," while the Liberal Manchester Guardian said "Lord Altrincham Stands Firm."

But the magazines Truth and The New Statesman gave full support to the 33-year-old Lord's campaign to cut through what he considered unnecessary crusty protocol at court.

Truth said "a widespread feeling exists, to the detriment of the monarch, that the court is a shop closed to all but members of a small section of the population." The magazine also urged Her Majesty to employ professional speech writers to make her public appearances "warmer."

The left-wing New Statesman gently chided the Queen for allowing herself to be identified with horse racing and, less politely, tabbed her royal entourage as belonging "to the realm of caricature."

LONDON, Ont. (BUP)—A Canadian army corporal, James Wainwright of London, Ont., today offered to pay the one pound fine for the man who slapped Lord Altrincham, who had recently criticized the Queen and her courtiers.

Wainwright said the action of 64-year-old ex-sergeant Philip Burbridge in London, England, was "heroic."

"Old Burbridge showed his loyalty to the queen," said Wainwright. He added that he would send the money to London.

Nikita Visit Hurts German Unity Plans

BERLIN (Reuters)—Western observers believe that Nikita Khrushchev's current East German tour has, if anything, made German reunification even more remote.

They say the visit, now in the third day of an expected seven, has followed a pattern predicted earlier: Strong support for the East German Communist regime, sharp attacks on Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his West German government, and deadlock on the reunification question.

The 12-man delegation led by the Soviet Communist party chief split up Thursday night for separate tours of East Germany, with Khrushchev and his group going to Leipzig and Trade Minister Anastas Mikoyan leading other delegates to Sassnitz, on the Baltic coast.

Canada Sends Turkey

10 Ships Under NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will supply Turkey with 10 Bangor class coastal escort vessels this year under its NATO mutual aid program, it was learned today.

The ships have been in reserve at Sydney, N.S., since the end of the Second World War.

They were built in the early 1940s for about $1,000,000 apiece and Turkey will get them free under the mutual aid program whereby Canada supplies arms to its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The vessels, besides being coastal escorts, are also fitted for minesweeping.

The vessels are the Blairmore, Fort, William, Kenora, Kentville, Mahone, Medicine Hat, Nipigon, Sarnia, Swift Current and Westmont.

Dates for transfer of the ships to Turkey are not yet fixed but it is expected that at least five will be turned over before the end of this year.

Children Blamed For Bridge Fire

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Fire department officials believe that the blaze which blocked the Pattullo Bridge across the Fraser River for two hours Thursday was started by children. (See story Page 6.)

But the strain was telling. "I snapped my watchband straining at the wheel and was soaked with sweat when we landed," he said.

"After all, I wasn't calling the shots—the good Lord was."

Tyson landed his nine crew members and 57 passengers safely after a last-minute ordeal when the landing gear didn't lower. Two flight engineers worked the big wheels down with an emergency hand crank. The wheel housing had jammed when the No. 1 propeller flew off.

The plane landed smoothly in spite of the yaw created by the two engines on only one side.

Passengers and crew emerged dripping with sweat. Not only had they been "sweating it out" for nearly seven hours, but all vents had been closed to cut down drag.

Incongruous flower leis were draped around their necks in the traditional Hawaiian greeting as they babbled their relief at landing and their confidence in Tyson and his crew.

The co-pilot, Capt. George Holly, 35, told about the ordeal. The No. 1 propeller started running away. Tyson and the flight engineer slowed it but couldn't feather it. The prop flew off and damaged the No. 2 propeller and engine. A piece dented the fuselage but didn't penetrate. Tyson took her down to 50 feet and flew at that altitude or slightly above it most of the 1,000 miles.

Passengers were moved forward to help balance the plane, flying unevenly on her two engines.

Baggage was jettisoned, including 1,500 pounds of mail. No one complained, but one woman did lament "I've lost my hat, the most beautiful hat in the world."

Holly said that once the aircraft was under control and the baggage overboard "it was just a question of fuel remaining—whether we had enough."

Four Trapped High in Alps

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP) — One of the climbers trapped on the sheer north wall of Eiger Mountain died today as 60-mile-an-hour winds howled around the peak, it was reported by Willi Balmer, chief of the Grindelwald rescue service. He said rescuers also had lost sight of the other three.

The climber who was reported dead by Balmer was one left tied to a rock and abandoned by his fellows so they could continue their fight for life.

The pilot of a Swiss rescue plane circled about 600 feet away.

"When we first saw the man, he was roped upright to the rock," Balmer reported. "He waved toward us with both arms."

"He continued waving whenever we could manage to get near until his arms suddenly dropped down."

When the men were seen clambering up the north wall this morning, hopes rose that the good weather would hold.

Then the strong south wind whipped up.

At noon a grueling 2,500 feet still remained before they could reach the summit, and a chance to come down by an easier route. With one false move, death lay 3,000 feet almost straight below.

It is considered impossible to descend the overhanging face of the towering mountain in the Bernese Alps, of Central Switzerland. The north wall has been scaled only about 20 times, and has claimed a number of lives.

The four climbers, believed to be Germans and Italians, had been almost motionless on the wall since Monday.

Queen Asks to See U.S. Football Game

WASHINGTON (UP) — The White House announced today some of the major events planned for Queen Elizabeth's six-day October visit. The dates range from a football game to a full dress ball.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said that the Queen requested that an American-style football game be added to the Royal itinerary.

The game selected was one between the University of Maryland and the University of North Carolina at nearby College Park, Md., Oct. 19.

Hagerty said a detailed schedule for the visit of the Queen and Prince Philip Oct. 18-21 will be made public later. He emphasized that the engagements announced today are only the major events which have been agreed upon so far by London and Washington.

Hagerty also noted that while no talks between the Queen and President Eisenhower are listed, the two will have ample opportunity for informal and personal discussions because the Queen and Prince Philip will be residing at the White House during their four-day stay in Washington Oct. 17-20.

The schedule released today includes five formal dinners and also leaves room for a New York ticker tape parade.

Full-Time Agriculture Minister Named Soon, Promises Bennett

Premier Bennett said Thursday he took over the agriculture portfolio on a temporary basis last May so that he could gain direct knowledge of the industry's problems.

A full-time minister of agriculture will be named "in due course, and not too long a time," the premier said.

Asked by reporters if he was awaiting the result of three by-elections next month, Mr. Bennett declined to answer.

"The premier never intended to keep the (agriculture) post," Mr. Bennett said. "I wanted to give special study to it."

Agriculture has not been keeping pace with the rest of the economy, the premier said, and he wanted to know more about it.

Council Balks On Latest Sink Proposal

A long-standing dispute over sinks in housekeeping rooms flared again at city council Thursday and still appears far from settlement.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson's health committee, attempting to enforce a 1949 by-law which calls for the sink installations, was again overruled by council.

Latest proposal of the committee was that sinks should be installed "unless alternative facilities are approved as satisfactory by the medical health officer."

Two ratepayers' groups want existing rooming houses exempted from the law. A majority of rooming house owners have already complied at considerable expense, and health officials are reluctant to change the by-law after most have complied.

Council balked at the new plan which would give discretionary powers to examining officials.

Warsaw Strike Ended

WARSAW (AP) — A five-day strike of meat packers has ended without settlement at Lodz, Poland's second largest city. It was accompanied by what the communist organ Glos Robotniczy calls "demagogic attack on the party and its leadership."

Strikers demanded increased pay, among other things.

CORSICANA, Tex. (AP) — Dave Kuykendall, who claimed he was 114 years old, died here Thursday night. Until his last short illness, he said he had never been sick or consulted a doctor. He was a coal miner during the American Civil War.

people compete in the oil business

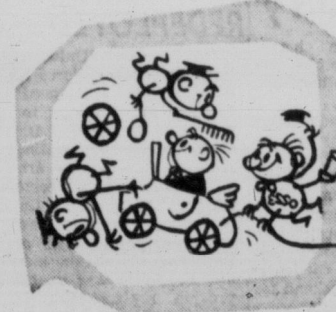

Did you know there are more than 10,000 people engaged in the search for oil in Canada? We know it, because we run into plenty of them each time we try to lease promising oil lands.

Did you know there are hundreds of skilled chemists and engineers in Canada's 42 refineries? We know it, because our own technical people have to work hard to stay ahead of the others in producing better products at lower cost.

Did you know Canada's oil companies employ thousands of salesmen to market their products? We know it, because every day our own sales people are competing with salesmen from other companies.

Canada's hundreds of oil companies wage vigorous competition. The result is increased efficiency, and benefits to the consumer.

There was a mixed trade in rye.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included Belgium 115,000 bushels, Japan 110,000 and The Netherlands 75,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, TWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged with the exception of No. 6 wheat, down one cent from Thursday.

Chicago (AP) - Some professional trade liquidation in advance of the government's crop forecast pushed soybean futures down more than three cents at times today on the board of trade.

Wheat and rye also were down around a cent or more in some cases, while corn and oats dipped minor fractions.

Trade was dull as the government report, to be issued after the close of trading, was awaited with some anxiety.

There was little doing in other pits, except some hedging.

Aconic Dips Again, 120,000 Shares Sold

With trading slow the stock market at Toronto was lower today.

Aconic was off 95 cents at $2.05. Turnover on the stock was 120,000 shares. The price, however, was only $1.05 above the low hit during the steel plunge Tuesday.

Dominion Steel and A. V. Roe Canada continued to churn over big volumes but the price altered little on either stock. Dominion Steel was up 1/4 to 31 1/2 and A. V. Roe was off 2 1/4 points at 19 1/2.

The New York market drifted lower in sluggish trading. Oils and metals were the weakest divisions.

AT TORONTO Ford A. Abitibi and Aluminium were off a point. General Dynamics gained 1 1/2 points at 53 1/2 while Power Corp and B.C. Telephone were each up a point.

Senior base metals lost fractions. Uranium was mixed to lower while other low-priced metals drifted off in narrow-range trading.

Western Oils were generally weaker. Consolidated Western Petroleum, however, gained 35 cents at $7.90. Jupiter, Canadian Export Gas, Banff and Fargo lost 15-25 cents.

AT NEW YORK Canadian gainers included Walker-Good.

Quietly edged securities were quietly irregular. Foreign bonds were quiet. Rails were dull with Canadian Pacific echoing the slump in dollar stocks.

Dominion Steel was a firm spot in the dollar issues. It advanced sharply following a bid by A. V. Roe of Canada. Avro shares declined sharply.

Industrials were "occasionally" higher on selective demand but the general trend was irregular. Stores were firm.

AT VANCOUVER prices were lower on a dull market. Trojan moved 7.00 at $3.20. Peace River moved 3.00 at $1.55.

Details on Merger Of Two B.C. Firms

Shareholders will be asked approximately $17,000,000 in the next few days to approve the merger of two of British Columbia's largest construction supply firms.

Both companies have a long record of consistent earnings. B.C. Cement's operating profit has risen from $547,949 in 1947 to $2,496,692 in 1956, and the net profit from $301,898 to $1,082,699.

Similarly, Evans, Coleman and Gilley Brothers' annual operating profit has risen from $1,169,987 to $3,860,710 over the same period while the net profit increased from $412,076 to $1,214,631.

A public offering of shares in the holding company will be made through A. E. Ames and Company.

Both existing firms will maintain their separate identities and continue to operate in their present form.

All the shares of the two operating companies will be held by the holding company.

Originally 501,600 shares will be outstanding and upon completion of the merger the holding company will have issued an additional 501,600 shares to acquire all the outstanding shares of Evans, Coleman and Gilley Bros. Limited on a share for share basis.

As a subsequent step, and in order to extend the degree of public participation in the holding company, A. E. Ames & Co. will make an offer to purchase from shareholders up to one-third of their holdings, which they will later market as a public issue.

Under a recently signed technical aid agreement, Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers Ltd. of London, who hold at present 50 per cent of the capital of B.C. Cement Co. Ltd., undertake to continue the management and technical supervision of the plant.

At the completion of the merger the new company will have total consolidated net assets of

WESTCOAST GAS PIPELINE THROUGH B.C. COMPLETED

VANCOUVER (CP) - Westcoast Transmission Co.'s $170,000,000 natural gas pipeline through British Columbia was completed Thursday, the firm announced.

Frank M. McMahon, president, said final weld in the 650-mile conduit was made at Mile 119.5, close to the geographical centre of British Columbia, months ahead of schedule.

The pipeline stretches from the Peace River fields of western Alberta and eastern B.C. to Vancouver and the international border.

Plans are under way for the line to be extended from Vancouver as a submarine line bringing natural gas to Vancouver Island.

Before that, however, it will bring the gas to most large mainland B.C. communities and

MONTE ROBERTS

People are forever telling me I should have my head read, and I am inclined to agree with them.

In fact, there is nothing I would like better than to have my head read.

The trouble is, to have my head read by a qualified psychoanalyst, a drastic change in said head would be necessary.

As I understand it, psychoanalysts dearly love to hear about a patient's dreams, and by analyzing these dreams, the psychoanalysts are able to read the patient's head.

Well, my trouble is, I cannot remember my dreams.

Other people can remember dreams, why can't I?

Other people come up to me and they say: "I had the strangest dream last night."

Clutching me by the buttonhole so there is no chance of escape, they proceed to describe the dream in detail: "There I was walking down St. Patrick's Street, in the 1200 block, no, it was the 1300 block, and I had nothing on but a pair of pearl grey spats and black suede shoes, size 10 double A, and a pair of maroon swim trunks with a gold stripe down the sides.

"Well, sir, what did I see coming toward me down the street—this was in my dream, mind you—but a cream colored convertible, 275 horsepower, torsion bar suspension, red leather upholstery, and a blonde (40, 18, 35) with blue eyes, sitting in the back seat, but nobody driving.

"Wasn't that strange?" these people who remember their dreams ask me.

"What was the licence number of the car?" I ask them, hoping to cause confusion. But right back comes the answer: "California plates, black on yellow, XTB 9846. Why?"

Well, the type of people described above are ideal patients for psychoanalysts.

But as for me, all I can remember about a dream is that I had a dream, and sometimes not even that.

Occasionally, however, I can remember thinking to myself (while the dream was going on) that this is a most interesting dream, and that I must make a point to remember it in detail.

And when I wake up in the morning, can I remember this interesting dream?

No. In fact, some dreams are so intriguing (at the time they are being dreamed) that I am convinced they will make good column material.

But when I wake up in the morning, can I remember this dream, this dream which would make good column material?

No.

Which PROVES I should have my head read.

PUNGENT 'PUNDITS'

Child Critic Finds Book 'Too Childish'

By DINAH KERR

Some pungent observations on children's books have come from the stubby pencils of youngsters who attended three reading clubs at Victoria Public Library this summer.

The clubs, headed by children's librarian Mrs. Isabelle Goodwin, met once a week for six weeks, and at each session the children had to submit "reviews" of the books they had read.

Two of Mrs. Goodwin's favorite "critics" are Jindy Johl, a young Hindu lad, and Carolyn Grace Heal, both members of the "Swiftsure Adventurers" Club for grades four to six.

JUST LIKE FILM

One of Jindy's pet books was "Molly and Michael." "I liked it because it's just like the film of Leshahn," he reported. "I liked the film of Leshahn."

He also liked "The Tale of Mr. Fox" because "it's just like the story of old granny fox, the book I read two months ago."

Then there's "Babs of the Foothills." Jindy really fell for this one.

"It's interesting and not only that in the first chapter, I think it was, Babs found a dead fish by the river."

HAPPY ENDINGS

"A Hat for Amy Jean" pleased him, too.

"I like stories with happy endings," Jindy pencilled in a quavering script. "I like this book because I like birthdays too."

Jindy also fell for the religious books, particularly "The Boy and Girl Who Knew Jesus." "If there was no such person as Jesus," he observed, "there would not be a world, no food, no people or water."

Carolyn liked most of the books she read, but she had a sharp word for "The Penguin Goes Home."

TOO CHILDISH

"I'm very sorry to say I don't like this book because it's silly. I feel it's too childish for a pupil in grade six."

"The Girl in the White Amor" (her spelling) was more Carolyn's style. "It tells of how Joan of Ark went to war against the English," she wrote. "I am glad she was such a brave girl."

Carolyn satisfied her scientific bent with "All About Volcanoes and Earthquakes."

She says "It tells about the warnings of the volcanoes. There are also stories of how many people died in volcanoes."

HELP AT SCHOOL

In a thoughtful postscript Carolyn added, "This may help me in science at school."

On "Nickels and Dimes," she recounts "It tells how Frank Woolworth started a store from almost nothing. He afterwards had stores all over. In Pennsylvania, Harrisburg and Brooklyn and more places."

LUNCH HOUR CLOSING EXTENDED TO B.C. MUSEUM, ARCHIVES

The government has tightened up its lunch-hour office closing order to include the Provincial Museum, library and archives.

Along with almost all government offices, they now will be closed from 12 noon until 1:10 p.m. daily.

When the general order came out two weeks ago, it was announced they would remain open to visitors, but no staff would be on duty except an attendant.

The "closed for lunch" signs have been popping up on government office doors this week, and it is understood Premier Bennett intends to make the closure as complete as possible.

The order-in-council setting up the uniform lunch period for civil servants left a loophole for department heads by stating "necessary services" could be maintained.

Some are being told now their services are not as essential as they had thought.

'Wonder Ships' In First Meeting

The two newest additions to the RCN's Second Canadian Escort Squadron met at Esquimalt harbor today, for the first time as commissioned ships.

HMCS Skeena, returning from a two-month cadet training cruise, eased into berth outboard of HMCS Fraser at HMC Dockyard's Jetty A — quietly marking another milestone in the modernized strength of Canada's navy.

The Skeena and Fraser are both $23,000,000 wonder ships, packed from fantail to forepeak with electronic gear, mounting the most destructive anti-submarine weapons yet devised.

STILL PROUD

Berthed ahead of the new ships are two of the destroyer escorts now being outmoded — but still proud, sleek, and effective in their jobs. They are the Tribal class destroyers Cayuga and Athabaskan — both "senior" to Skeena and Fraser in the squadron.

The two tribals and the Skeena returned at 10 a.m. today in company with the training cruiser HMCS Ontario, whose commanding officer, Capt. Robert Welland, was senior officer for the cruise to California and Hawaiian points.

PROMOTION

Cadets embarked for the cruise are enrolled in the regular officer training plan. In addition to cadet training, the cruise offered opportunity for regular navy men to advance their ratings.

The voyage just ended is Capt. Welland's last in the Ontario, and likely his last sea-going command for some time. He has been posted as commanding officer of HMCS Shearwater, the navy's air-training establishment near Dartmouth, N.S.

The cruiser will go into annual re-fit shortly, which will last into December, and her next cruise is expected in January.

30 Young Swimmers Ready For Beaver-Elk Lake Race

Thirty youngsters have registered already for the third annual Beaver-Elk Lake distance swim Labor Day.

Closing date for entries is next Thursday, Aug. 15. Both boys and girls, 11 to 19, may get entry forms at Beaver Lake's lakeside tearoom or by mail.

Ninety young swimmers covered the two-mile course from Happyland to Beaver Lake beach last year.

KEEP GOV'T OFFICES ON V.I. CHAMBERS TO TELL PREMIER

The Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island will meet Premier Bennett and his cabinet Aug. 20 to discuss Vancouver Island improvements.

A brief to be submitted by the delegation will deal with rural planning, conservation, power resources, development of a parks system on the Island and keeping government establishments in Victoria.

"We are most anxious that government establishments shall not be moved to the mainland," Arnold W. Webb, secretary of the Associated Chambers, said today.

Quebecker Picks Tuesday For Juan de Fuca Attempt

Jacques Amyot, 32-year-old swimmer from Quebec city, Tuesday will make the 46th solo attempt on the Strait of Juan de Fuca and the ninth from the Port Angeles shore.

Raymond Roy, his trainer, said today Tuesday had been chosen because of lower tides. Amyot and his trainer expect to hire a boat today.

After studying tide time-tables on the American side, they decided to cross the strait by boat early Tuesday morning and begin the attempt about 6 a.m.

"Jacques has found the water very cold in his training swims this week and it appears that the cold rather than the distance will be the difficulty in this swim," Mr. Roy said.

"But we are still confident that he will make it in about 11 hours, if the tides are not too strong."

Amyot, who applied too late to enter last Sunday's mass swim, is no newcomer to distance swimming. Last year he conquered the English Channel in 13 hours and two minutes. He also was the first to swim 21-mile-long Lake St. John near Quebec City and has made long swims in the St. Lawrence River.

Lumber Slump Hurt PGE, Says Premier

A drop in rail shipments on the PGE this summer is symptomatic of a nation-wide decline, Premier Bennett said Thursday.

"It's amazing the way the PGE has been able to keep doing the business it has," the premier said.

If the lumber business had been buoyant, the railroad's revenue would have been up, he said.

Mr. Bennett said he will make an inspection trip up the PGE to Prince George in the last week of August.

The premier will leave Vancouver on Sunday, Aug. 25 with the PGE board directors, who will meet on the train.

Mr. Bennett also disclosed that he will take a vacation next week.

He plans to take part in the three by-election campaigns in the two weeks before voting day Sept. 9 in Burnaby, Delta and Cariboo.

IN THROES OF NEW NOVEL

Based on ticklish Arab situation in Near East is well-known Victoria author Mrs. Agnes Newton Keith, here on two-month holiday from Tripoli, Libya. She's been there two years with hubby, an agriculturalist with the UN's food and agricultural organization. They return next month "and it will take me to the year's end to complete my book" said the author, who wrote best-sellers "Three Came Home" and "White Man Returns."

Contentants tonight will include saxophonist Keith Donaldson, a 1956 winner; vocalist Jim Smith, acrobatic dancer, and vocalist Muriel Bertrand and singer Donald Smith. Trumpeter Doug Painter will make a guest appearance.

Contests will be held each Friday night until the Labor Day finale.

Blood Duel Challenge Issued

Vancouver, New Westminster Prodded by Mayor Scurrah

Mayor Percy Scurrah today challenged New Westminster and Vancouver to a "blood duel."

"Let's see whether they can beat Victoria in a contest to answer the current shortage of stored blood," the mayor stated.

Contest winner would be the city which provides the most blood donors per thousand population.

Special clinics are being held in the three cities next week to relieve a province-wide shortage which top officials have described as "critical."

Victoria's clinic, to be held at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, Tuesday and Wednesday is sponsored by the mayor as a "Mayor's Drive." Donors will be given a special tag to be worn as a badge of honor during the two day drive.

Provincial Red Cross Transfusion Service chairman, Mrs. J. N. Mawer, announced the mainland clinics and appealed for donors.

SURGERY DELAYED

Lack of stored blood has already caused postponement of 30 operations at Vancouver's General and St. Paul's Hospitals. At Royal Jubilee in Victoria, only emergency surgery is being undertaken.

Vancouver Mayor Fred Hume has promised a personal investigation of the situation.

It was not known at press time whether he and the mayor of New Westminster would accept Mayor Scurrah's challenge.

Areas surrounding the metropolitan areas are expected to give support to the three emergency clinics.

Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich, Reeve Fred Norris of Oak Bay and Reeve Alfred C. Wurtele of Esquimalt each called on residents of those areas to support the mayor's drive.

Dr. T. D. Stout, blood transfusion service medical director in Vancouver, said Thursday the blood shortage had not improved from earlier in the week. At least 1,200 pints of blood are required in B.C. every week.

A high incidence of emergencies plus absence of many donors on vacation was blamed for the shortage.

Hours of the Victoria clinic are 1:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon and 7 to 9:30 in the evening. Donors must be between 18 and 65. The procedure is brief and painless.

Victoria Red Cross officials report "a terrific number of calls from donors, pledging their appearance at the mayor's drive."

Hikers' Trail Asked For Centennial Year

A 30-mile hikers' and campers' trail, through one of Vancouver Island's most beautiful alpine areas, is proposed as a centennial project by Victoria outdoor men and mountaineers.

The project, to be submitted to the B.C. Centennial Committee, calls for the construction of a scenic trail from Great Central Lake to Butte Lake in Strathcona Park, with shelters for campers.

The proposed trail takes in Della Falls, the highest in Canada which spills over a 1,500 foot precipice, milky-blue Beauty Lake, Cream Lake and Della Lake.

It also skirts two spectacular peaks, Big Interior Mountain and Mount Septimus, each over 6,000 feet, and passes over Flower Ridge, an alpine plateau covered in summer with masses of alpine blooms and shrubs.

"The area is comparable to the Rockies," said Ted Fairhurst, past president of the Victoria Outdoor Club. "There are snow-covered peaks, glaciers, chasms and attractive lakes."

The project, proposed by the Outdoor Club and the Victoria branch of the Alpine Club of Canada, is supported by all outdoor groups on Vancouver Island, he said.

A brief on the project is being prepared by Noel Lax, chairman of the local Alpine Club and Sid Watt, outgoing committee chairman of the Outdoor Club. The two men headed a party over the proposed trail in July.

The plan calls for the construction of two shelters along the trail.

Members of the clubs are prepared to construct the shelters if the provincial government will supply the lumber and materials. These would be dropped on the site by a helicopter next summer when the alpine heights are clear of snow.

The route of the trail would start from Great Central Lake and would follow Drinkwater Creek to Della Falls. From there it would turn eastward passing a few lakes and gradually rising to "Flower Ridge," which leads to Butte Lake.

The spectacular ridge is 4,000 feet in height and several miles long. It provides the hiker with one of the most beautiful views of Vancouver Island.

Campers or hikers would have to go by boat to the start of the trail from Great Central Lake or Butte Lake. There is a ferry service to the head of Central Lake at present.

Victoria outdoor men said the area is ideal for fishermen, alpine climbers and campers who seek the open spaces and are not satisfied with the roadside parks of the provincial government. It would also prove a big attraction for the more adventurous U.S. campers and fishermen, they said.

Inscription for silver tray: Some friends of ours are about to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary. We have selected a small silver tray for them with a blank space in the centre which will accommodate only a small inscription. Should it be marked "The Brown's 25th" or "The Browns' 25th"? Possibly you can suggest a better phrase to fit the small space.

Louise Davis

If your heart is set on an engraving to give the tray that personal touch, I am in favor of having just the initial "B" inscribed in that small space. Your suggestion sounds a little too "trophy-like" for such an occasion, and I am afraid it might spoil the beauty of the tray by throwing the design out of balance. If you are anxious or determined to have some inscription to commemorate the event, perhaps you can

Plums A-Plenty on Market; Pickling Supplies Here

By PENNY SAVER

Plums are at their best now and you'll likely be taking home a big bag of them with your weekend shopping. I found some with names I've never heard of—cherry peach plums, for instance. These are tiny ones and you can buy three pounds for 25 cents.

The more familiar varieties include California prunes at 20 cents a pound, and golden eggs at 25 cents.

It's the peak of the apricot season—they'll be finishing up in the next week or so. At the moment, you can buy two pounds for 29 cents, and cases range from $1.59 up.

I saw big, juicy-looking peaches at 29 cents for five—bet your family is hoping for peach shortcake or pie this weekend.

Nectarines—the fruit half-way between a peach and a plum—are two for 29 cents, which seems expensive to me, but you might like to try a few just for the novelty.

Bartlett pears have just appeared on the market, and you'll find them variously priced—I saw some at four pounds for 25 cents and others at 25 cents for three pears. There are a few more varieties of apples available now, besides the Transparents at two pounds for 25 cents. There are Melbas at 29 cents for two pounds, and Gravensteins, imported from the States, at 39 cents for half a dozen, which is certainly dear enough.

Now's the time to start doing up pickles for next winter's eating! Pickling supplies were just being uncanted in one store, and they'll be on the market for the weekend.

TODAY'S RECIPE

FRESH PEACH ROLL

Biscuit dough, 2 cups sliced peaches, ½ cup granulated sugar, ½ cup light brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon butter, juice and grated rind 1 lemon, 1 cup boiling water. Make favorite biscuit dough using 2 cups flour or packaged mix. Roll ¼-inch thick, cover with peaches. Roll up like jelly roll, press edges together, cut in 2-inch slices. Place in greased 8-inch square pan. Combine remaining ingredients, cook gently until slightly thickened. Pour over slices in pan. Bake in 425°F. oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

For a spectacular party dessert, start with two layers of chocolate cake made from a mix. Cool and split layers in half. Put the four thin layers together with sweetened whipped cream. Frost top and sides of cake with a rich chocolate frosting and cover generously with finely chopped walnuts.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

(The Friday Question Box)

Q. "I am 12 years old and my problem is that I have a lot of dark and long hairs on my legs. Because of this I dread wearing shorts. My mother and I think that I am too young to shave my legs or use one of the hair removing lotions. Could you tell me how to hide the ugly hairs with a leg make-up?"

A. The chances are that the hair on your legs will decrease as you grow a little older. However, I disagree with you and your mother. If this is making you self-conscious and unhappy there is no reason in the world why you should not remove it.

If a young girl is self-conscious about this or any handicap, her personality is likely to be injured. It has happened many times.

Q. "What exercise would help eliminate weight on the stomach? I have a roll there which increases with the years and would like to correct this before it is too late. I have tried waist exercises but this doesn't seem to help."

A. The waist and abdominal exercises are quite different. As a general rule the waist exercises are of the bending type while the most effective abdominal exercises are taken lying on the floor on one's back. Here is a good one: Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor at your sides. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen. Straighten the legs toward the ceiling. Slowly lower legs to floor (with stiff knees). Continue.

Q. "I have a wart on one of my fingers. How can I remove it?"

A. Do not try to remove it yourself. A skin specialist can do it very easily.

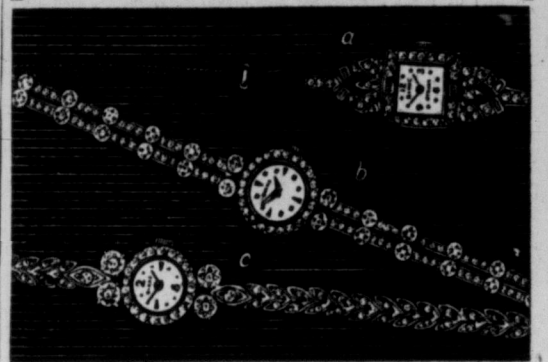

Q. "I am 16 years old, 5 feet 6 inches and weigh 90 pounds. My bust measures 31 inches, waist 22½ and hips 32. I know I should gain some but how much and where?"

A. You really are quite underweight. You should weigh around 125 pounds. I strongly urge you to have a physical check-up and gain weight under a doctor's supervision. Your measurements are in good ratio. You just need to gain all over.

Reports said the swimmers were in the water about eight hours.

U.K. Food Handlers' Strike Spreads

LONDON (Reuters) — A marathon strike by wholesale food handlers in London spread further today, and for the first time threatened to cause shortages of imported vegetables, fruit and bacon.

Polish Submarines Off British Coast

(From Times News Services)

LONDON — With the Royal Navy watching curiously, two Polish submarines cruised slowly and mysteriously southward today along the North Sea coast of Scotland.

Diplomats in London speculated that the crews might be looking for a place to land to ask asylum from the Communist regime in Warsaw. The Royal Navy said they would get the usual treatment for visiting warships should they land.

The subs were first spotted off Aberdeen on the northeast coast of Scotland. Soon after daybreak a spokesman at Rosyth naval headquarters said the vessels were about 30 miles off the entrance to the Firth of Forth.

"They are just going quietly along," he said. "We don't know where they are bound for and we have not been in communication with them."

"If they should come into a British port they will be granted facilities normally accorded to visiting warships," the spokesman said.

Later the subs were seen 30 miles off the coast of England. A Western diplomat in London who declined use of his name raised the possibility that the crews might seek political asylum. He was the first to report that the navy had spotted the subs.

no help was needed. They gave no explanation of their mission.

The minesweepers were withdrawn in late afternoon, with the submarines about 30 miles off Berwick-on-Tweed, on England's North Sea coast.

The Polish Navy is known to have only four submarines—all pre-war—although Russia may have transferred modern ones to her ally.

In 1954 the crew of the Polish trawler Puszczuk overpowered the vessel's captain and political commissar and sought refuge at the port of Whitby.

WATCHED BY SWEEPERS

Two British minesweepers were sent out to watch the visitors during part of the day.

The admiral said that as a matter of courtesy the minesweepers had offered by message to provide the submarines with any assistance they might require.

The submarines replied that

RUSSIA SHIPS ARMS, PLANES INTO YEMEN

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain is aware that there have been six—possibly seven—shipments of Soviet arms to the Arab Red Sea Kingdom of Yemen, a foreign office spokesman said today.

He told his daily press conference that he understands these shipments included a number of planes. There were also about 50 Soviet instructors or technicians in Yemen.

He said he could confirm that these supplies are being delivered and "I think the supply started about the beginning of the year."

Thousands Flee; Winds Hit 90 MPH

NEW ORLEANS (UP) — A gulf hurricane packing winds up to 90 miles an hour bore down on the Louisiana-Texas coast today. Thousands of persons fled to avoid repetition of the Hurricane Audrey disaster.

Rising tides along the same stretch of coastline that was battered mercilessly in June heralded the approach of the new hurricane, nick-named Bertha. Hurricane-force winds were reported unofficially about 55 miles south of the Louisiana shoreline shortly before 2 p.m. EDT (11 a.m. PDT).

Residents who only recently moved back into such stricken areas as Cameron and Pecan Island, La., left their homes for inland cities. The Red Cross opened refugee centres in Lake Charles and other South Louisiana cities.

Cameron, site of some 500 deaths in the Audrey disaster, only last week began an ambitious rebuilding program. It was abruptly halted today.

Offshore oil drilling companies removed all their oil rig crews—some 3,000 men—Thursday night, and today were sending their floating equipment inland.

Oil companies with equipment off the Louisiana coast reported their rigs "holding up pretty well" in seas churning with 15 to 20 foot waves.

The weather bureau's advisory at noon EDT located the hurricane, travelling roughly in the same path as its killer predecessor Audrey six weeks ago, about 140 miles southeast of Lake Charles, La.

U.S. 'Puzzled' by Attack On Queen Says Archbishop

LONDON (UP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury predicted today that recent criticisms of the Queen's public speaking would "not in the least" affect her forthcoming visit to North America.

U.S. reaction to the article by Lord Altrincham who said her speeches made the Queen sound like a "priggish school girl" was one of "puzzlement," the archbishop said on his return from a trip to New Haven, Conn., where he attended the World Council of Churches.

He said he had nothing to add to his statement in New Haven two days ago that the criticism by the peer who was smacked in the face by an indignant Briton "lacked wisdom."

Americans, he said, were asking "What is all this about?"

He said he stood by his statement in America when he said "her subjects feel that the Queen fulfills their highest ideals in her combination of proper formality and restraint and full, intelligent and happy" relations with her subjects.

The archbishop said the criticisms would soon be forgotten.

Meanwhile, the Daily Express today came out with the headline "It's that Peer Again" in reporting Altrincham's new conclusions on television Thursday night.

Among other things, the young peer said Prince Charles should be sent to a public school instead of the exclusive institution he now attends.

He also said the Queen takes too many holidays.

The News Chronicle reported the program with the headline "Altrincham Again," while the Liberal Manchester Guardian said "Lord Altrincham Stands Firm."

But the magazines Truth and The New Statesman gave full support to the 33-year-old Lord's campaign to cut through what he considered unnecessary crusty protocol at court.

Truth said "a widespread

Bail Refused For Russian Master Spy

NEW YORK (AP) — Accused master Russian spy Rudolph Ivanovich Abel was arraigned in Brooklyn federal court today on charges which could bring his execution. A plea of not guilty was entered for him by the court. Abel was held without bail when arraigned before Judge Matthew T. Abruzzo.

The judge inquired whether Abel had obtained a lawyer and Abel said he had not. Asked how long it would take him to get one, Abel replied:

"I really don't know."

Abel said he would like to be given time to obtain a lawyer before further proceedings and the judge complied. The judge then set a hearing in the case for Aug. 13.

MAY BE COLONEL

Abel, alleged to be a colonel of the Soviet secret police, was indicted by a Brooklyn grand jury on charges that he headed a Russian spy ring sending U.S. military and atomic secrets to his homeland.

The 55-year-old prisoner appeared in unpressed clothes for his arraignment. He was baggy eyed and spoke in soft tones, with a fatherly deep voice and a trace of a foreign accent.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William F. Tompkins described Abel as the head "of a most elaborate and intricate espionage" ring.

Tompkins opposed granting bail for the defendant, saying Abel was a national of the Soviet Union, had entered the United States from Canada illegally, concealed his presence here and "illegally obtained" secret information relating to U.S. national defence.

Rebels Repel Oman Troops

KERSHA VILLAGE, Oman (Reuters) — British-led loyalist troops, advancing against rebel tribesmen in Oman, have withdrawn after meeting unexpectedly strong opposition at Firq, six miles and cannot fire to pave the way for the troopers.

The motorized column of British and native loyalist forces halted Thursday outside Firq, after meeting the first resistance in their drive against the rocky, Oman desert. Firq is only five miles from Nizwa, headquarters of the rebellious Imam of Oman.

Meanwhile, an army communiqué issued in Manama said the sultan's own forces have passed through the Samal gap and have reached Izki, about 20 miles east of Nizwa.

The sultan's forces are approaching Nizwa from the east in the second prong of a pincer movement, while the British-led force moves in from the southwest.

An official spokesman in Bahrain said an Arab trooper had been killed and another wounded in the fighting around Firq.

Meanwhile, the column's commander, Brig. J. A. R. Robertson, flew to Bahrain to consult with the British political adviser there about future strategy concerning Firq.

The rebels resistance came from well-concealed sniping positions inside the narrow alleys. But the sultan's British-offered native infantry repelled with the aid of light machine guns and mortars.

RAF Venom jet fighters also blasted the town with rocket

B.C. Job Picture 'Not Calamitous'

The unemployment picture in British Columbia, while somewhat gloomier than last year, is "certainly not calamitous," the province's top employment officer said today.

William Horrobin, regional employment officer at the Vancouver office, told The Times he was concerned about "scarce headlines."

"While there is a considerably larger number of unemployed than a year ago, the problem is not drastic."

Some people are "crying blue ruin before it is upon us," he said.

At the same time, Mr. Horrobin said he could not be "too optimistic" about the situation this winter.

Employment had not picked up as expected following settlement of a number of industrial disputes, particularly in the coast logging industry, earlier this summer.

As a result the number of persons registered at unemployment insurance commission offices throughout the province is greater than at the same time last summer.

In Vancouver, there were 16,000 unemployed persons in July, compared with about 11,000 in the same month last year.

Lumbermen's Party Ends In Tragedy

VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Philippe J. Delesalle, 28, Vancouver, drowned early today during the annual gathering of the Hoo Hoo Club, lumbermen's fraternity, on the West Vancouver estate of J. Gordon Gibson, former Liberal MLA.

Other guests said Delesalle was pulled from the private swimming pool when it became obvious something was wrong but failed to respond to efforts at resuscitation.

West Vancouver police called Dr. Harold Dyer, North Vancouver coroner, who said death "apparently was due to drowning."

He was to confer with police today about the matter of calling an inquest.

About 300 people, including many prominent B.C. business executives, were at the annual party. The Hoo Hoo Club, first formed in 1892, became active again during recent years after a period of dormancy.

Mr. Gibson, a partner in the W. F. Gibson and Sons logging company, was elected Hoo Hoo president in 1953.

The dead man was an official of the L. and K. Lumber Co. and was connected with the Abbotford Wood and Coal Co., operated by the Delesalle family.

Four Trapped High in Alps

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP) — One of the climbers trapped on the sheer north wall of Eiger Mountain died today as 60-mile-an-hour winds howled around the peak. It was reported by Willi Balmer, chief of the Grindelwald rescue service. He said rescuers also had lost sight of the other three.

The climber who was reported dead by Balmer was one left tied to a rock and abandoned by his fellows so they could continue their fight for life.

The pilot of a Swiss rescue plane circled about 600 feet away.

"When we first saw the man, he was roped upright to the rock," Balmer reported. "He waved toward us with both arms."

"He continued waving whenever we could manage to get near until his arms suddenly dropped down."

When the men were seen clambering up the north wall this morning, hopes rose that the good weather would hold.

Then the strong south wind whipped up.

At noon a grueling 2,500 feet still remained before they could reach the summit, and a chance to come down by an easier route. With one false move, death lay 3,000 feet almost straight below.

It is considered impossible to descend the overhanging face of the towering mountain in the Bernese Alps of Central Switzerland. The north wall has been scaled only about 20 times, and has claimed a number of lives.

The four climbers, believed to be Germans and Italians, had been almost motionless on the wall since Monday.

PARTIAL ITINERARY

Queen Asks to See U.S. Football Game

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Queen requested that an American-style football game be added to the Royal Itinerary. The game selected was one between the University of Maryland and the University of North Carolina at nearby College Park, Md., Oct. 19.

Hagerty said a detailed schedule for the visit of the Queen and Prince Philip Oct. 16-21 will be made public later. He emphasized that the engagements announced today are only the major events which have been agreed upon so far by London and Washington.

Hagerty also noted that while no talks between the Queen and President Eisenhower are listed, the two will have ample opportunity for informal and personal discussions because the Queen and Prince Philip will be residing at the White House during their four-day stay in Washington Oct. 17-20.

The schedule released today includes five formal dinners and also leaves room for a New York ticker tape parade.

Announcement of the contract award is expected at Ottawa shortly. Seven contractors submitted bids.

Council Balks On Latest Sink Proposal

A long-standing dispute over sinks in housekeeping rooms flared again at city council Thursday and still appears far from settlement.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson's health committee, attempting to enforce a 1949 by-law which calls for the sink installations, was again overruled by council.

Latest proposal of the committee was that sinks should be installed "unless alternative facilities are approved as satisfactory by the medical health officer."

Two ratepayers' groups want existing rooming houses exempted from the law. A majority of rooming house owners have already complied at considerable expense, and health officials are reluctant to change the by-law after most have complied.

Council balked at the new plan which would give discretionary powers to examining officials.

Warsaw Strike Ended

WARSAW (AP)—A five-day strike of meat packers has ended without settlement at Lodz, Poland's second largest city. It was accompanied by what the Communist organ Glos Robotniczy calls "demagogic attack on the party and its leadership." Strikers demanded increased pay, among other things.

CORSICANA, Tex. (AP) — Dave Kuykendall, who claimed he was 114 years old, died here Thursday night. Until his last short illness, he said he had never been sick or consulted a doctor. He was a coal miner during the American Civil War.

Full-Time Agriculture Minister Named Soon, Promises Bennett

Premier Bennett said Thursday he took over the agriculture portfolio on a temporary basis last May so that he could gain direct knowledge of the industry's problems.

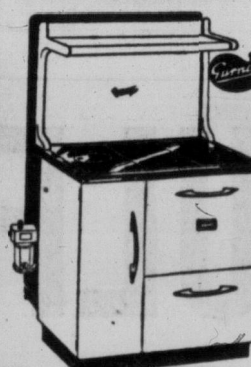

"A full-time minister of agriculture will be named 'in due course, and not too long a time,' the premier said.

Asked by reporters if he was awaiting the result of three by-elections next month, Mr. Bennett declined to answer.

"The premier never intended to keep the (agriculture) post," Mr. Bennett said. "I wanted to give special study to it."

Agriculture has not been keeping pace with the rest of the economy, the premier said, and he wanted to know more about it.

people compete in the oil business

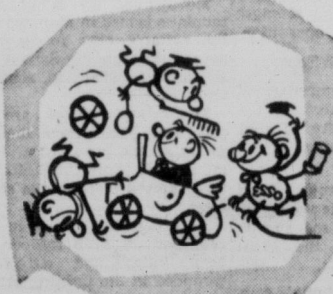

Did you know there are more than 10,000 people engaged in the search for oil in Canada? We know it, because we run into plenty of them each time we try to lease promising oil lands.

Did you know there are hundreds of skilled chemists and engineers in Canada's 42 refineries? We know it, because our own technical people have to work hard to stay ahead of the others in producing better products at lower cost.

Did you know Canada's oil companies employ thousands of salesmen to market their products? We know it, because every day our own sales people are competing with salesmen from other companies.

Canada's hundreds of oil companies wage vigorous competition. The result is increased efficiency, and benefits to the consumer.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Most salmon runs have been pleasingly early this year, but what has happened to the first main run of springs at Cowichan Bay?

Many anglers are convinced the first big run of salmon heading for spawning grounds has yet to arrive, and although they have been predicting the "any day" appearance of the run for more than two weeks, it appears they could be right.

There has been an occasional good flurry, but tyee-sized fish are still missing and fishing generally has yet to come up to the standard normally offered at Cowichan Bay during this part of the season.

They could also be wrong. A big concentration of salmon was finning in front of Genoa Bay one evening and a good number of springs are moving up the river. The expected run may have come and gone. If so, there is consolation in the thought that a large escapement of spawning salmon should help fishing in the cycle year and following runs may stick around longer.

In fact, things seem to be shaping up for a busy weekend. There was some good action Wednesday night and a few good catches Thursday morning.

Eddie Brenton registered the largest catch Wednesday—a 28½-pounder—while Felix Luckovitch topped Thursday morning's entries in the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's ladder derby with a 19½-pounder.

Bucky Kennel couldn't shake his recent Cowichan Bay jinx and lost a big one Thursday, but George Syrtuck and Ed Mould came in with three good-sized springs and Keith Mawbey weighed in an 18-pound, seven-ounce specimen.

After almost three weeks of the Cowichan ladder derby, there were only 32 of the 50 available rungs filled at noon Thursday. Heading the list was H. Wadsworth's 28.15-pound entry and R. J. LaRiviere was hopefully holding down the 32nd rung with an eight-pounder.

Brenton moved into second place with his Wednesday catch while Hugh Gibson was holding the third rung with a 26.06-pound entry. The derby continues until August 24 and the top 50 anglers will qualify for the Sept. 1 fish-off.

Coho are providing most of the action as good fishing continues off the Victoria waterfront. But a few whopping springs, like the 39½-pounder Dr. Hugh Borsman took off Fulford Reef Wednesday evening, are testing tackle now and then.

A good number of coho were brought in at Oak Bay Boathouse Wednesday. Although they only boated two coho, Charley Guiguet, Stan Williams and Jerry Maxwell had some fast action while using green-and-white bucktails off Discovery Light. Strikes were numerous and seven silvers broke away almost within netting distance.

Best salmon fishing still appears to be in waters between William Head and Otter Point, where a shortened, green Hoochy-Koochy, used with minnow and flasher has been a hot coho lure.

At Saanich Inlet, most of the larger springs appear to be hanging around the Goldstream end, but coho and jack springs are providing interesting fishing in all parts of the Inlet.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Jarvis brought in salmon limits at Goldstream Thursday morning while M. Alexander, A. Brayshaw, John Law and Art Mawer were among those who limited Wednesday. Brayshaw topped his catch with an 18½-pounder.

Mawer, Bert Nex, Don Robbins, Bill Heath and Pat McLean, who had a 22-pound spring, accounted for limits Tuesday. Coho were hitting Tuesday evening off Senanus Island, where A. E. Longland reeled in a 10½-pound silver. McKenzie Bay has also been a good spot and things are picking up again off Deep Cove and Mill Bay.

Tickets for the August 18 fish-off of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby are being picked up at a fair rate but it's a good bet that several qualifiers will be unhappy after forgetting to pick them up before the deadline next Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

Tickets will be on sale at 1225 Government Street until 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. At that time, unsold tickets will be counted and a pick-up list announced. Anglers on the new list will then have until 5:30 Saturday to collect their tickets.

Lone U.S. Hope Highly Regarded

MONTREAL (CP) — Marjorie Burns, tall, bespectacled and vice-president of a business with her father in Greensboro, N.C., is fast becoming a favorite to walk off with the Canadian Ladies' Open Amateur golf championship.

She is the lone American contender left for the semi-finals. Today she meets Mary Gay of Calgary, while Betty Stanhope of Edmonton and Roma Neundorf of Toronto meet in the lower half.

The pleasant, easy talking southern girl—"You're going to ask me my age and I'm not going to tell you"—has shown her golfing prowess through three rounds of the tournament.

RAE ELIMINATED
She put on her best performance Thursday in the quarter-finals with a convincing 3 and 2 defeat of Rae Milligan of Calgary. The power-hitting western girl, often wild but coming up now and then with good recoveries, succumbed to Miss Burns' fine iron play and sharp putting.

Mary Gay couldn't shake off Elva Carrol of Hamilton until the fourth extra hole. Mary was two up at the turn and finally lost the advantage at the long 17th where she put her third into thick bushes back of the green and after two whacks conceded the hole.

With an upset in the making, Elva blew her chance at the 20th when she three-putted from 12 feet, but at the 22nd Mary calmly ran down a six-foot birdie putt while Elva's seven-footer missed by inches.

ALBERTA CHAMP WINS
In the other quarter-final matches Alberta champion Betty Stanhope knocked out Janet MacWha of nearby St. Lambert 3 and 1, and Roma Neundorf caused quite a stir among the galleries by eliminating Mrs. C. F. Spalding of Greenwich, Conn., one up.

Miss Stanhope, whose game has been improving steadily throughout the tournament, had to make a strong finish down the back nine to pull out her match with the capable Miss MacWha.

Gorge Just Getting Set For Playoffs

The Senior "A" Men's Softball League title has been in their pocket for some time now, but Gorge Hotel batters are still sharpening their home-run eyes for the playoffs.

Ab Wiebe helped win his own game Thursday night against Half Way House as he clipped a pair of homers over the left-field barrier to drive home three runs in Gorge's 6-5 victory.

He had company in the slugging department. Teammate Leroy Bond hammered out a homer in the third and Half Ways' Bobby Lowe caught one of Wiebe's good pitches for a boundary buster in the sixth.

Allowing only six Half Way hits in the game, Wiebe was in constant trouble as he walked 12 and struck out only four.

Half Way House fell down in the RBI department, leaving 10 runners stranded on bases.

SEATTLE HAS GOLD CUP FEVER

Speedboat-Wacky Town

SEATTLE (AP) — On Gold drivers of the assorted hydro-wacky town, everybody tries to get into the act.

Sunday race will spew the entire city onto the Lake Washington shoreline. Those who can't get aboard the private pleasure boats anchored on three sides of the course will stand elbow to elbow on the banks.

City police and fire department estimates in recent years have guessed the crowd at half a million. Nobody can quarrel with the guesses. You might count those ashore and estimate that was second best time of the numbers in the pleasure boats, but other thousands are watching from the homes which qualify pace was some six miles slower than the 117,054. Spray is flying high today as m.p.h. record set earlier this week by Maverick, also a Seattle boat.

Among other qualifiers are Gale V. Gale VI and Short Circuit, all of Detroit, and Miss Wahoo and Shanty of Seattle. Starting at noon Sunday, the Gold Cup is a 90-mile race of three 30-mile heats. The first two heats will be run in sections of seven boats each.

Grim Story of Six-Hour Struggle Told by Pilot of Crippled Plane

By JIM BECKER
HONOLULU (AP)—"I wasn't calling the shots—the good Lord was."

That's Maj. Samuel Tyson's explanation of how he kept his four-engine military transport aloft for 6½ hours on two engines Thursday for 1,000 miles over the Pacific with 67 people aboard.

Tyson, a 37-year-old veteran of the Second World War, the Korean War and the Berlin airlift, piloted the big C-97 plane into Hilo, Hawaii, at 11:25 a.m. Thursday. Two of its engines had quit just beyond the point of no return on a flight from Travis air force base, Calif.

"It never occurred to me that we would ditch," said Tyson. "I'm a coward," he grinned. "I can't swim very far. The water's cold."

More seriously, he said: "I'd determined to take things as they came. After the first shock of realizing we were in danger, I thought clearer and acted better. I had confidence in myself."

But the strain was telling. "I snapped my watchband straining at the wheel and was soaked with sweat when we landed," he said.

"After all, I wasn't calling the shots—the good Lord was."

Tyson landed his nine crew members and 57 passengers safely after a last-minute ordeal when the landing gear didn't lower. Two flight engineers worked the big wheels down with an emergency hand crank. The wheel housing had jammed when the No. 1 propeller flew off.

The plane landed smoothly in spite of the yaw created by the two engines on only one side.

Passengers and crew emerged dripping with sweat. Not only had they been "sweating it out" for nearly seven hours, but all vents had been closed to cut down drag.

Inconspicuous flower leis were draped around their necks in the traditional Hawaiian greeting as they babbled their relief at landing and their confidence in Tyson and his crew.

The co-pilot, Capt. George Holly, 35, told about the ordeal. The No. 1 propeller started running away. Tyson and the flight engineer slowed it but couldn't feather it. The prop flew off and damaged the No. 2 propeller and engine. A piece dented the fuselage but did not penetrate. Tyson took her down to 50 feet and flew at that altitude or slightly above it most of the 1,000 miles.

Passengers were moved forward to help balance the plane, flying unevenly on her two engines.

Baggage was jettisoned, including 1,500 pounds of mail. No one complained, but one woman did lament "I've lost my hat, the most beautiful hat in the world."

Holly said that once the aircraft was under control and the baggage overboard "it was just a question of fuel remaining—whether we had enough."

Movie Stars Must Testify Judge Rules

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—A shouting argument between attorneys enlivened unsuccessful attempts to prevent actor Tab Hunter from testifying in the trial of Confidential magazine about allegedly spicing goings-on in Hollywood.

Superior Judge Herbert V. Walker rejected the plea of Hunter's attorney, Gilbert D. Seton, to bar the actor's testimony from the trial.

But before he ruled, Seton and the chief defense counsel for Confidential's agents, Arthur Crowley, squared off in a chest-to-chest argument that looked like Leo Durocher disputing a strike call with the umpire.

Canada Sends Turkey 10 Ships Under NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will supply Turkey with 10 Bangor class coastal escort vessels this year under its NATO mutual aid program, it was learned today.

The ships have been in reserve at Sydney, N.S., since the end of the Second World War.

They were built in the early 1940s for about $1,000,000 apiece and Turkey will get them free under the mutual aid program whereby Canada supplies arms to its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The vessels, besides being coastal escorts, are also fitted for minesweeping.

The vessels are the Blairmore, Fort William, Kenora,

Kentville, Mahone, Medicine Hat, Nipigon, Sarnia, Swift Current and Westmount.

Dates for transfer of the ships to Turkey are not yet fixed but it is expected that at least five will be turned over before the end of this year.

Nikita Visit Hurts German Unity Plans

BERLIN (Reuters)—Western observers believe that Nikita Khrushchev's current East German tour has, if anything, made German reunification even more remote.

They say the visit, now in the third day of an expected seven, has followed a pattern predicted earlier: Strong support for the East German Communist regime, sharp attacks on Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his West German government, and deadlock on the reunification question.

The 12-man delegation led by the Soviet Communist party chief split up Thursday night for separate tours of East Germany, with Khrushchev and his group going to Leipzig and Trade Minister Anastas Mikoyan leading other delegates to Sassnitz, on the Baltic coast.

Spies Jailed For 5½ Years By U.S. Court

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacob Albam, 64, a former Brooklyn tea and spice dealer and Mrs. Myra Sobie, 52, were sentenced to 5½ years in prison each today for spying for Russia.

Her husband, Jack, 54, a third member of the espionage ring, was to be sentenced later. He was not in court.

All three pleaded guilty.

Both Albam and Mrs. Sobie appeared shocked when Judge Richard H. Levett pronounced sentence.

Throughout the preliminaries, the blonde Mrs. Sobie wept softly.

Nervously pacing a corridor outside the courtroom was the Sobies' 17-year-old son, Lawrence, who repeatedly has expressed faith in his parents.

Children Blamed For Bridge Fire

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Fire department officials believe that the blaze which blocked the Pattullo Bridge across the Fraser River for two hours Thursday was started by children. (See story Page 6.)

UN TROOPS REDEPLOYED

GAZA (AP)—United Nations Emergency Force headquarters has announced redeployment of troops to fill gaps left by the withdrawal of the Indonesian contingent from the international army.

The Indonesian government recently informed the United Nations it was withdrawing its forces from UNEF since they had served six months and Indonesia was unable to provide replacements.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Patricia Simpson, age 13, of Richmond, Va., for her question:

How are icebergs made?

Did you ever wonder what would happen if ice did not float? When a pond froze, the ice would sink to the bottom. It would be hidden from the warm spring sunshine and perhaps never melt. Next year a new layer of ice would form and sink. Pretty soon, most of the rivers, ponds and some of the seas would be frozen solid, summer and winter. So let's be glad that ice floats, even if ships do have to dodge a few icebergs.

Ice floats because water expands as it freezes. A cubic foot of fresh water weighs 62 pounds, a cubic foot of ice only 56 pounds. The ice floats because it is lighter than the water. In fresh water ice floats with about nine-tenths of its bulk below the surface. But icebergs float in the sea. And seawater is more buoyant than fresh water on account of its load of dissolved chemicals. The icebergs are lighter by comparison. The monstrous white palaces which threaten the sea lanes drift along with six-sevenths of their bulk below the water.

Each iceberg is made from fluffy snowflakes. Winter snows fall on the polar regions, layer upon layer. And snow has weight. The top layers press down onto the lower layers, packing the snow flakes into a solid mass. Soft drifts of snow are pressed into hard sheets and fields of ice. Summer thaws melt the surface into trickles and streams of clear water. New frosts freeze the water in glassy ice. A glacier forms, many feet thick. For summer is not warm enough to melt all the snow that fell through the winter.

Such glaciers form on Greenland's mountains, around the Arctic Sea and over the whole continent of Antarctica. Year by year, new ice and snow are added to these glaciers. Something must be done, otherwise they would grow to cover the earth. Nature has a slow way and a fast way of getting rid of her extra ice, of trimming the edges of her glaciers down to size.

The edges of a glacier melt away in icy streams. The ferocious valley around Salt Lake City is watered with streams melted from the snow-capped Watch mountains. Green-land's ice caps are freezing cold the year round. But the lower edges of the icy tongues reach down the warmer slopes and summer melts them into gushing streams. The sea, always warmer than the land, licks at the edges of the vast polar icefield, melting them into water.

Nature's quick way of trimming her glaciers down to ice is by icebergs. The glaciers and giant icefields grow outwards from the centre. The central weight of the vast mass is forever pushing old ice out towards the edges. In some places, the glaciers face the sea as sheer cliffs of ice. These areas are pushed from behind by the weighty icefield and pounded in front by the tossing waves.

Sooner or later, great chunks of ice are weakened under the strain. There comes a thundering, tearing crack. A section of glacier breaks free and spills into the sea. An iceberg is born. From now on it is at the mercy of tides and currents. Its temperature is lower than the sea water. It begins to melt, pouring fresh water into the salty ocean.

Sooner or later it is caught in a current bound for warmer regions. Melting is speeded up and the chunk of hard ice shrinks and shrinks. Our northern iceberg, even one a mile wide, does not last many days when carried on a current bound for Bermuda.

Andy sends a Hammond's Ambassador World Atlas to Joan Hill, age 11, of Philadelphia, Penna., for her question:

How large is the island of Jamaica?

The beautiful island of Jamaica covers an area of 4,450 square miles. This makes it 539 square miles smaller than the state of Connecticut. The island is a jewel of year-round summer climate, where gorgeous birds bedeck the lush green foliage. For Jamaica sits in the warm tropical waters of the Caribbean seas.

The summery island is long and narrow, 144 miles in length and 40 miles wide. It is the largest and richest of the British West Indies. Cuba, pearl of the Antilles, is but 90 miles to the north. And Jamaica is of tile valley around Salt Lake City is watered with streams melted from the snow-capped Watch mountains. Green-
